Axis Army Hides in Desert Lair As African Battle Shifts to Sky

British Resort To Plunges at Bivouacked Foe

CAIRO, July 8.—(AP)—The British defenders of Egypt resorted to desert patrol and air actions today against the bivouacked Axis forces west of El Alamein, but the great decision apparently was in the making in aerial battles as far away as the mid-Mediterranean sea of Malta.

There were indications that the supplies Marshal Rommel needs to resume his march into Egypt were being harassed in transit overseas from Italy, and the ports of entry in Libya were being methodically bombed by the Allies.

The British communiqué issued this morning told of continuing enemy air attacks on Malta, and these intensified blows on the much-bombed island apparently were designed to counteract British attacks on Axis convoys supplying Rommel's desert armies.

Air Action.
The communiqué said British fighters shot down nine Axis fighters and damaged others in yesterday's fighting and that in the Malta operations and the desert warfare combined eight British fighters were lost, with six of the pilots saved.

(The British communiqué from Malta Tuesday evening reported the island defenders had bagged 24 enemy planes in 24 hours, and there the British undoubtedly were using planes delivered recently off the flight deck of the United States aircraft carrier Wasp.)

In addition to the indicated long-range attacks on Axis convoys at sea and in African ports such as Tobruk and Benghazi, the Allied aerial forces were striking Rommel in the reeled positions he has taken by curving his southern flank like a fishhook, with the shank on the seashore west of Alamein and the point around to the southwest above the Qattara depression.

Allied fighter-gunners were reported to have shattered vehicles and gun positions and fired oil dumps in the immediate battle area. On the northern sector, patrols destroyed some Axis tanks and took a few prisoners.

Fishy Water.
Fishy water, so unpalatable that no stomach can stand it, was all that the British left behind for the Germans.

This was the result of fish oil methodically poured into the wells at all oases.

Although German engineers no doubt have cleaned the wells by now and made the water drinkable, it will keep its lingering taste of fish for months.

Because water sources on the desert, although scarce, are virtually indestructible, this method has supplanted former efforts to blow up the wells. Where a well is blasted the enemy can get palatable water within 24 hours by digging a new one near by.

All-India Congress To Avoid Aid to Japan

WARDHA, India, July 8.—(AP)—Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Indian leader whose influence is second only to that of Mohandas K. Gandhi, told the press today the All-India congress committee intended "so far as we can" to avoid doing anything to assist Japan. The committee now is in session.

Pro-Nazi Belgian Mayor Slain by Uniformed Man

VICHY, Unoccupied France, July 8.—(AP)—A report from Brussels today said Jean Demaret, 35-year-old Renard (pro-Nazi) mayor of the town of Ransart, had been slain in his office by a man wearing a uniform of the Belgian gendarmerie. The killer escaped.

'Babs' Hutton Weds Cary at Quiet Rites

LAKE ARROWHEAD, Cal., July 8.—(AP)—Handsome, British-born Cary Grant, one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors, and Barbara Hutton, the slim, blonde one-time "poor little rich girl," were married today in a quiet ceremony witnessed by only a few close friends.

The wedding climaxed a romance of several years, which began in Hollywood soon after the heiress sued for divorce from the Danish Count Haugwitz-Reventlow, her second husband.

The Rev. H. Paul Romeis, pastor of the English Lutheran church in near-by San Bernardino, where the license was issued, performed the six-minute ceremony shortly after noon. It took place in the home of Frank W. Vincent, Grant's manager, at this mountain resort.

Grant, 38, now an American citizen, and his bride obtained their license several days ago in utmost secrecy. She signed herself as the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow and gave her age as 29. It was Grant's second marriage, her third.

The heiress renounced her American citizenship when she married the Count, but since had expressed her intention of again seeking status in this country. Immigration authorities said the mere fact of her marriage would not automatically return her citizenship, but would make possible her application without filing first papers, thus reducing the number of years necessary for completion of the action from five to three.

Only four friends witnessed the ceremony—Mrs. Madeline Hazeltine, who was matron of honor; Vincent, who attended the bridegroom; Frank Horn, Grant's secretary, and William Robertson.

The bride wore a navy silk dress with cyclamen blouse and hat, and carried a bouquet of roses. She had blue accessories. Grant, deeply serious, wore a gray-blue business suit and blue necktie.

The newlyweds left immediately after the ceremony without disclosing their destination, but Grant said they would make their home in Brentwood.

He is due back at RKO-Radio studio tomorrow to resume work on his current film, "Once Upon a Honeymoon." The bride's fortune has been variously estimated at from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000. She was born November 14, 1912, in New York, the daughter of Franklyn Laws Hutton and the former Edna Woolworth, daughter of F. W. Woolworth.

Russell Backers Escape Trap Of Worried Talmadge Faction

By RALPH MCGILL.

It was not until yesterday that the more astute, and until yesterday somewhat puzzled, Russell leaders in state politics, smelled the cheese in the Talmadge trap.

If he is so desperate to get the Russell votes it must mean that he is worried about the primary.

If he is, that convention in October—the supreme court of party politics—might be an Arnall convention.

If it is—well, that explains why the Russell faction saw a great light yesterday and went rapidly away from the trap, wiping off the lipstick and the powder left by all those kisses forced on them by the Talmadge forces.

One-Sided Courting.

It was known that the courting had all been one-sided. Senator Richard B. Russell had denied emphatically, and without reservation, that he had made a deal with the Talmadge forces. Long an advocate of telling one's own political skillet, the junior senator said not only had he made no deal but that he had not even discussed one.

He was embarrassed by the love-making of the Talmadge faction but there wasn't much he could do about it except say there was no deal and keep his mouth closed. It was obvious the Talmadge people were a bit desperate about something.

It was not until yesterday that the picture became clear and those few Russell men who had tentatively stuck their heads in the trap, quickly withdrew them and got away from there.

The continual double-crossing of the Talmadge faithful and the courting of the Russell faction in an obvious effort to court the support of that faction in state politics, could mean only one thing. The Talmadge faction is worried. Plenty worried.

They are so worried they are, without Senator Russell asking it, giving his friends appointments and offering his brother a job as president of a state college while the Talmadge faithful stand hungry and thirsty at the trough.

There is just one thing that could explain it.

The Talmadge ship is leaking badly. The crew is worried. They

Special Rations Of Gas Allowed To Aid Voters

New east coast gasoline rationing regulations provide special additional rations for automobiles used to carry voters to and from election polls and for cars used by candidates in political campaigns, the OPA disclosed yesterday as it announced readiness for the start of permanent rationing registration this morning.

The registration, to be conducted at schools, will continue through Saturday.

Rationing starts July 22 in the eastern states.

In general, hours observed will be from 9 o'clock to 6 o'clock. Local authorities will determine this.

Allison Thornwell, Georgia OPA head, and Martin L. Johnson, state rationing officer, urged these points:

1. Registrars at the schools will issue only the basic "A" books for motorists and the basic "D" books for motorcycleists. Supplementary rations must be obtained from local boards.

2. All questions to be asked of each registrant can be answered from the automobile owner's certificate—issued by the state when the car's license tag was obtained. This owner's certificate must be brought by the registrant.

3. Each registrant is urged to register at the site nearest his home, although in an emergency any registration place will accommodate him.

4. It will not be necessary to bring along the first temporary gasoline rationing card.

All supplementary rations of gasoline will be authorized by local boards upon applications presented in person or mailed any time after the basic book is obtained.

However, it was pointed out that while local boards will receive applications beginning Thursday, the filing need not necessarily be done before July 22 when rationing actually begins.

Holders of "A" cards, OPA officials emphasized, can use the first eight coupons in the "A" book while they are in process of getting supplemental rations.

OPA officials said yesterday the giving of a use tax serial number was not a requisite to obtaining a ration book.

13 PROFITERS WHIPPED.

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, July 7. (Delayed)—(AP)—The first whippings for profiteering here occurred today when 13 convicted profiteers were given 30 lashes and three months' imprisonment.

Friend Sees Light.

Once the primary was over, of course, that could be cast aside.

It was just yesterday that one of Senator Russell's staunchest friends saw the light.

"The primary is in September," he said. "Now, Tom Linder got a receipt for his $500 from the committee. They tried to give him back that money. But he got a receipt."

"Now, the primary is in September. There is no appeal from the committee before that."

"But the convention is in October and there is an appeal to that convention. The delegates to the convention belong to the winning Governor."

"If Ellis Arnall wins, as it now looks, that convention will be his convention."

"It could decide that since Tom Linder had his receipt he had been democratically deprived of his right to enter the race after his money had been received. They could certify two candidates for the November election in the senatorial race."

"There is plenty of precedent for it."

Russell To Hear Trick.

"The Russell people, if foolish enough to go along with Talmadge because of all this love-making and a few appointments, might wake up and find themselves out on a limb they didn't pick. I am getting in touch with the senator."

Moore Blames Talmadge for Higher Gas Cost

Blame for the entire increased cost and rationing of gasoline throughout Georgia was laid at the gubernatorial door of Governor Talmadge last night by Wiley L. Moore, Atlanta oil company executive who is campaign treasurer for Ellis Arnall, Talmadge's lone opponent in the September 9 election.

Moore charged that Talmadge could have averted both the rationing and the price increase on gasoline in Georgia if he had cooperated with the federal government last spring. Moore dared Talmadge to make public a telegram from President Roosevelt, which he ignored last March, and declared he will publish it if the Governor doesn't.

Following is Moore's statement: "I was having breakfast with my good friend, Senator George, yesterday morning, when Governor Talmadge and the Chief of the Palace Guard, Johnnie Goodwin came by. They stopped and talked with us for a few minutes. Governor Talmadge made no complaint or mention of the gasoline situation in Georgia."

"Immediately afterwards the Governor went to his office and wrote Senator George and the other members of the Georgia delegation in congress a letter, leaving the false impression that I had the price of gasoline raised for the purpose of raising lobbying and campaign funds. Why didn't the Governor say something to the senator or myself about the gasoline situation while we were talking at the breakfast table yesterday morning?"

Refused to Co-operate.

"I have nothing to do with the price of gasoline in Georgia or elsewhere. If Governor Talmadge had any sense he would realize that neither myself nor any other oil company in the United States has authority to increase the price of gasoline anywhere in the United States without authority from the Office of Price Administration in Washington. Incidentally, if Governor Talmadge had not utterly refused to co-operate with the President of the United States in his desire to prepare this country for war, Georgia would not be in a rationed zone, nor would the price of gasoline be up today."

"The people of Georgia can certainly charge Governor Talmadge with full responsibility not only for the increased price of gasoline, but also for the rationing program which we are having to contend with. The President of the United States sent Governor Talmadge a telegram last March telling him of the seriousness of the situation, which the Governor completely ignored."

"I want to ask Governor Talmadge, for the benefit of the people of Georgia, if he won't have this telegram published in order that we can keep the record straight? If the Governor won't have the telegram published for the benefit and information of the people of Georgia, I will."

"Governor Talmadge is frantic."

ACCUSES TALMADGE—Wiley L. Moore, prominent Atlantian, yesterday charged Governor Talmadge with being responsible for the increased cost and rationing of gasoline in Georgia.

GIVES UP GARY—Mrs. L. H. Riels, of Goodes, Va., yesterday signed away all rights to her 5-year-old son, Gary, whom she abandoned in the Terminal station and who became Atlanta's darling. She asked that her son be put in a good home. He is going to be.

Gary's Mother Early Response Signs Away All Spells Success Rights to Son For Fund Drive

Mrs. L. H. Riels, mother of Atlanta's young favorite, Gary, signed away all rights to her five-year-old son yesterday before Judge Garland Watkins, of the juvenile court, and probation officers.

The mother, who left young Gary at the Atlanta Terminal Station 10 days ago, said she wanted the court to find a place for the child—though, his life might be better that way. And if her husband wants to get a divorce, she says that suits her, too.

"I think I'll get me a job in a restaurant. That's what I used to do. And I got along good then."

The slender, black-haired woman with bright blue eyes as sparkling as those of her young son, nervously recalled her life in Goodes, Va., where her husband is a railroad agent.

"That life," she said, "is an awful confusion but I have thought much about divorce. He used to talk about it. But if he gets one I can get a job back in the restaurant like I used to have."

The 41-year-old mother admitted that a present trial wasn't the first attempt to dispose of her youngest son. She cited a time two years ago when Gary was only three and she took him to a Children's Home Society in Virginia asking the judge to give him a good home. Then shortly afterwards she wanted him back and with her husband's plea the custody was granted.

Mrs. Riels, wearing a navy blue dress, a fancy navy straw hat with a veil and a pink flower necklace, said she waited all last week to "make arrangements with my husband and finally he sent two dollars, but of course that isn't enough for anything." She said she had spent that money yesterday and was anxious to sign relinquishment papers then so she wouldn't have the expense.

End To Rain Seen; Mercury To Go Up

Warmer weather, with no more rain expected, is the forecast for the Atlanta area today, Glen Jefferson, regional meteorologist, said last night. The rainy spell continued yesterday with 10 of an inch falling during the day.

Maximum temperature yesterday was 87 degrees, Jefferson said, and the minimum was 69.

Heavy German Thrusts Pushed Aside by Reds

MOSCOW, Thursday, July 9.—(AP)—The powerful new German battleship Admiral von Tirpitz, now on the loose again from her Norwegian fjord refuge and ranging the United States-British supply route to northern Russia, has been torpedoed twice and seriously damaged by a Russian submarine, the Russian communiqué announced early today.

Meanwhile, the Russians acknowledged that the battered city of Staryi Oskol, 65 miles west of Voronezh, has fallen to the Germans after heavy fighting, but Soviet reports indicated that spirited counter-attacks have wiped out the first German crossings of the vital Don river.

Russian tanks, cavalrymen from the Urals and Red infantry appeared to have taken the situation in hand as the Germans moved nearer Voronezh, vital as an important link of the Moscow-Rostov rail line.

35,000-Ton Vessel.

The 35,000-ton battleship, pride of the Nazi fleet and sister ship of the Bismarck which the British Navy harried to her doom last year, was hit by two torpedoes in the Barents sea, the official report declared.

The Russians, in the same action in northern waters, sank a German transport and damaged another, the communiqué declared.

"In the Barents sea one of our submarines attacked the new German ship Admiral von Tirpitz. Two torpedoes hit the vessel and caused serious damage," the communiqué said.

"In the Barents sea a German transport also was sunk and another damaged."

(The Tirpitz was attacked in the general area where the Germans claimed on Tuesday and Wednesday that they had sunk 32 vessels and a heavy United States cruiser out of a 38-ship convoy carrying supplies and war material to Russia.)

Spotted at Sea.

(The Tirpitz was last spotted at sea last March. British naval planes reported her presence when the German naval command apparently was planning to raid a convoy bound for Russia.)

(Under attacks from torpedoes, planes, she was chased to a Norwegian refuge and later located at Trondheim.)

(The German version of the recent attack on the Russia-bound convoy did not mention surface action but said that shipping losses had been caused by German bombers and U-boats.)

(The Tirpitz was reported still at Trondheim as late as May 22 and units of the American Navy joined British patrol forces in the North sea in June to keep her bottled up at her fjord-base.)

Meanwhile on the land front Russian dispatches said light enemy units which reached the east bank of the Don river in the Voronezh area had been destroyed and the bridges over which they crossed were torn down.

The tide apparently turned Monday night when the Red air force bombed and shattered German pontoon bridges and prevented the enemy from sending reinforcements to the east bank.

"During July 8 our troops fought fierce battles west of Voronezh," the Soviet midnight communiqué said.

Orphan Annie Drive Inspires Sisters Here

By JANE NOLAND.

The phone rang in the office of an Atlanta department store about two weeks ago, and hearing her mother on the wire, a very little girl voice asked—"Mommie, can we have the breakfast nook?"

Mrs. Charles Seiple Jr., mother of the little voice, said yes, she supposed so, and when she came home that night, she found that her daughters, Sara and Madeline, had indeed "taken" the breakfast nook and made it into the office of the Atlanta Salvage Commandos, complete with packing box desk and home-made slogans on the walls.

Inspired by Orphan Annie, of The Constitution's funnies, Sara and Madeline, aged 9 and 10, respectively, have been canvassing the blocks around their home at 1559 Peachtree, and the breakfast nook "office" is filling fast with old garden tools, pots and pans, and a sizeable amount of rubber. "We used to call the breakfast nook a catch-all," laughed Mrs. Seiple, "and now it really is."

But the Commandos don't intend to sell their hoard. They're gonna turn it in just for the thrill of "doing something," in the war—"like Orphan Annie."

The little sisters, who look enough alike to be twins, will explain their campaign to P. E. Horton, state chairman of petroleum and rubber salvage, at 8:30 o'clock this morning on the Penelope Penn broadcast, and Horton will urge parents to encourage their youngsters to join the Commandos' salvage drive.

SPARTA, Ga., July 8.—Hancock county farmers are becoming alarmed at the continued heavy rains which have been coming almost daily for the past week or more, as boll weevils are multiplying rapidly. Some poisoning has been done but very little progress can be made with it during rainy weather. Peanuts are looking fine but grass will get the upper hand of them if the rains continue, so the farmers are hoping for more sunshine.

Armour is expected to return as soon as possible.

Solons Discard Plan To Raise Postal Rates

House Members Polled on Issue of 5 Per Cent Sales Tax.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—As the House Ways and Means Committee today discarded a plan to raise postal rates in the new tax bill, Representative Robertson, Democrat, Virginia, asked the 435 members of the house, by questionnaire whether they would vote for a $2,500,000,000 sales tax. Chairman Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, wrote Postmaster General Walker that the committee had decided to abandon its plan to direct the Postoffice Department to raise rates on second and third-class mail enough to yield $102,000,000 and make up the current deficit on those post-office operations.

Robertson, a committee member and a leading advocate of a general sales tax, circulated a questionnaire asking members whether they would like an opportunity to vote in the house on a 5 per cent retail sales tax, government purchases exempted, which experts have estimated would produce $2,500,000,000.

He asked the members to answer the questionnaire "yes" or "no" and return it unsigned so that he might determine whether to campaign to have the issue brought up in debate next week. The committee refused, 14 to 9, to consider a sales tax and members said that it probably would not be brought before the house because the administration will seek floor consideration of the 324-page bill under a rule barring all amendments except such as may be sponsored by the committee.

Walker told the committee that it "would be pure conjecture" to assume that the rate increase would raise the expected revenue. Rather, he said, "the probable effect would be to drive second-class matter out of the mails."

Russell Faction Escapes Net of Talmadge Men

and telling him what a slick trick the Governor is trying to pull on him so that he can know what is going on.
"Meanwhile, if the Talmadge people are that desperate, it begins to look as if they don't think they can win. Double-crossing never did pay off. It isn't like Talmadge to knife his supporters unless he was desperate and needed something bad. I'm glad we saw this little move in time."
"The Russell people aren't Talmadge people and we aren't going to get pulled into this just because the Talmadge ship is leaking. We'll tote our own skillet. He can tote his."

"The trouble is Dick is not very talkative. He says little to anyone. He says so little, in fact, that the Talmadge crowd is counting on his forgetting to warn his own campaign managers over the state that he has no affiliation with the Talmadge crowd. The Talmadge palace guard then hopes to impress the Russell men who are bewildered by all this love-making."

The Talmadge ship was sunk in 1936 and again in 1939. It would have been sunk in 1940 if one of the two opposing candidates would have agreed to get out of the race and make it a two-man issue.

The Talmadge men who have been double-crossed in a desperate effort to line up the support of the Russell faction, now are beginning to see that only desperation would force such a maneuver.

The boys don't seem to like the trim of the ship today.

If it was sunk in 1936 and 1938 and could have been sunk in 1940, it can be sunk in 1942.

Figure out any other reason for this desperate play to the Russell votes, if you can.

The Russell voters already have figured out that if the situation is that bad that convention in October may be an Armistice convention.

It was a neat trap. But it didn't quite snap.

Bell Plant Water Main Is Nearing Completion

The new 20-inch water main from North Side drive and Arden road to the Bell bomber plant yesterday had been laid all the way to the Bell property line and needs extension to the plant site only to complete the installation, W. Zode Smith, manager of the Atlanta waterworks, announced yesterday.

The new line is 46,000 feet long and will provide up to 64,000,000 gallons of water a month for the plant. The Army has laid the pipe with the understanding the city will pay for the entire installation from water sales to the plant.

Hopkins' Bride-To-Be Is Seen As 'Stand-in' for First Lady

By INEZ ROBB.

International News Service Staff Writer
NEW YORK, July 8.—(INS)—When Harry Hopkins, Man Friday to President Roosevelt, marries Mrs. Louise Gill Macy on July 30, the First Lady will automatically acquire a made-to-order Girl Friday in the socially prominent New York bride.

When Mrs. Macy marries the No. 2 man in the administration and goes to live in the White House, she is certain to become the No. 2 hostess in that charming domicile, it was revealed here today.

Washington wiseacres say it is inevitable that the pretty New York socialite, once she is Mrs. Hopkins, will become the White House "stand-in" for Mrs. Roosevelt.

Ever since the foot-loose Eleanor Roosevelt moved into the executive mansion it has been mighty handy to have a bench-warmer ready to sub for her when the First Lady is in absentia on her jaunts across the country.

Through the first two Roosevelt administrations and the beginning of the third, both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt could depend upon the former's invaluable confidential secretary, Marguerite (Missy) Lehand, to act as White House hostess in the First Lady's absence.

Since Mrs. Roosevelt herself has happily announced that Hopkins and his bride will live in the White House, official Washington already is envisioning the pretty New Yorker as a road company for Mrs. Roosevelt. But with a difference—it will be the First Lady who takes to the road and the future Mrs. Hopkins who subs for her on the home front.
Mr. Hopkins' bride should experience no difficulty in presiding at the White House in the absence of the leading lady. She has long been an accomplished hostess, as well as a talented fashion editor, in New York and Paris.

Briton Says Freedom Fight Is To Be Won

Earl Speaks at 200th Anniversary of Bloody Marsh Battle.

ST. SIMON ISLAND, Ga., July 8.—(AP)—Together, the British and American peoples will not fail in their quest for "lives of freedom and constructive work," Lieutenant Commander the Earl of Carrick, declared at commemorative exercises for the battle of Bloody Marsh.

As the 200th anniversary of the victory of Georgia colonists over superior Spanish forces was observed yesterday, Lord Carrick, representing the British government, said "Georgians and Britons stand together in the forefront of the battle for the selfsame high ideals on which our two peoples have been guided through the intervening centuries."

"We did not fail them then; we shall not fail them now or in the future."

The ceremony was climaxed by the presentation of the deed to Fort Frederica to C. R. Vinton, of the National Park Service, by Mrs. Shelby Myrick, of Savannah, president of the Georgia Society of Colonial Dames.

Who Fired Wife
Of Dykes? Goodwin
Says It's a Mystery

By LAMAR Q. BAILL.

Idle brains in the Georgia Bureau of Investigation were offered a fresh mystery yesterday:

"Who fired Mrs. Dykes?"

About all that could be gathered from the mass of charges and countercharges was that Mrs. Dykes had been fired—Mrs. E. B. (Ed) Dykes, who has toiled in the Department of Public Safety for almost four years and whose husband is a candidate for the job of comptroller general of Georgia, subject to the will of the people in the September primary.

Mrs. Dykes has very definite ideas as to who fired her and she pulls no punches in accusing the present comptroller general, Homer Parker, who, by virtue of his office, is a member of the States Board of Public Safety.

Goodwin in Middle.
Major John E. Goodwin, the commissioner of public safety, and primo commando of the Tammany Palace Guard, very frankly and very earnestly argues that this mystery finds him in the middle, the victim of circumstances over which he has no control.

Homer Parker argues that: "I did not ask Johnny Goodwin to fire Mrs. Dykes. I told him this—I told him that she was out working to get her husband qualified to oppose me in the primary."

"I told Johnny: 'I think you ought to talk to her. What she's doing is just not the proper thing to do. She's working to enter her husband in the race against me and I'm a member of the board that controls the office where she works. That certainly is not proper.' What Johnny did, I don't know. Johnny has no right to fire anyone. He can suspend until the board meets, which is every 60 days, and the board acts on the suspension."

Aiding Husband Now.
However, it all happened, Mrs. Dykes announces that she is no longer an employee of the department where she worked almost four years and Goodwin yesterday verified that.

Instead, Mrs. Dykes is working in her husband's campaign headquarters in a downtown hotel, and of her former employer, Mrs. Dykes says quite pleasantly and quite amiably:

"I'm quite sure Mr. Goodwin had no choice in the matter. Some time ago, he spoke to me about my husband's entering the race, but nothing happened. Then he told me that Homer Parker was asking him to do something about it, and there was nothing for him to do—I either had to resign or be fired for playing politics while I was holding a job in the department. I have no complaint against Mr. Goodwin—I understand thoroughly."

Mrs. Dykes' husband yesterday said: "What is fair for one candidate for public office should be fair for another, regardless of whether they are in the 'inner circle' on Capitol Hill."

Removal Asked.
"Mr. Parker's wife is working as cashier in the comptroller's office and drawing state money under her maiden name of Wilhelmina Glissien."

"Mr. Parker's daughter, Helen, pense of waiting over for the hearing formally set for Friday. The case actually will not close until that time, thus giving Riels an opportunity to speak if he desires.

When Mary Riels arrived in Atlanta yesterday she couldn't understand why juvenile authorities wouldn't let her see Gary. She had a sack for him—comic books, candy and a whistle—and she said she didn't see why she couldn't see her child.

When asked why she thought this privilege should be granted she cried a little and mumbled something about just leaving him because she couldn't take care of him.

Mrs. Riels' relinquishment, however, was no tear-jerking affair. She matter-of-factly signed all the necessary papers and left. But she did consider the child's welfare carefully and knew Gary would live better under different circumstances.

Meanwhile Gary, the most clamored-for child ever to be held at the Juvenile Detention Home, had been placed in a private residence of prominent persons in Atlanta and was being initiated into a life of luxury which the abandoned darling had never known before.

Breakfast May Exceed Goal of
Million Dollars$750,000 Already Pledged; Atlanta Trying To Beat Birmingham.

They probably will change the name of Atlanta's Million-Dollar War Bond Breakfast in a day or so, because indications are that it will be a multi-million-dollar affair.

Latest tabulation of pledges for the breakfast, which will be held July 17, yesterday showed a total of $750,000 in war bonds which will be purchased at the breakfast.

Swelling the total were the pledges of two additional local business firms for $50,000 each and another firm which made a pledge of $100,000.

Admittance to the breakfast is based on pledging to buy at least $1,000 worth of bonds. That is the only stipulation for attendance at the gala affair, which will be held at 9 o'clock, at the Biltmore hotel simultaneously with hundreds of other similar affairs throughout the country.

That date was selected by the Treasury Department since it is observed as American Heroes Day. The breakfast idea originated in Birmingham. The affair was held

Anniversary of First Iron Ship
Launching Held at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 8.—(AP)—The 100th anniversary of the launching of the John Randolph, first iron vessel built in the United States, will be commemorated at exercises tomorrow, sponsored by the Propeller Club here.

The John Randolph was launched July 9, 1834, and was built for Savannah B. Lamar, one of Savannah's wealthiest and most prominent citizens.

Parts for the ship were imported from England, but it was constructed here and plied the Savannah river to Augusta.

She immediately showed superiority to wooden ships, sitting the water with lighter draft and on July 1, and almost $2,000,000 worth of bonds were sold. Following the success of that breakfast, the Treasury Department adopted the plan on a nation-wide scale.

A keen rivalry has developed between Atlanta and Birmingham, with the general theme of the communications from Birmingham being "Beat us if you can," John L. Conner, chairman for the local breakfast, said yesterday.

Headquarters for the breakfast have been established at 143 Hurt building.

Girls in Home Here Burned by Matron, Police Are Told

By DUPONT WRIGHT.

Allegations that the matron of the Community Home for Girls at 318 Cooper street burned two of her young charges with matches as punishment for smoking were made yesterday to the police and at Solicitor General Boykin's office. It was said that the accusations would be presented to the grand jury Friday.

The girls who made the charges each exhibited a series of burns, one on an arm and the other on an arm and on her neck. They were Sarah Frances White, 21, an orphan, and Myrtle Cameron, 15, who said she was in the eighth grade at Hoke Smith Junior High school and that she had left her home in Maysville.

The community home for a number of years has been in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong. Although the building has in the recent past been criticized as "an unfit habitation for girls," the outgoing grand jury gave it a clean bill of health, except for needed repairs, in its presentments last week.

Police Report.

The charges resulted from statements made to the police by Jane Moreland, 19-year-old Kentucky girl, sent to the home Tuesday to spend the night. In their report on this girl, Patrolmen A. H. Campbell and R. E. Williams had the following to say:

"We answered a call to 318 Cooper street, the girls' home. We talked to the assistant matron, who stated that the above party had been creating a good bit of disturbance and they wanted her brought down here (police headquarters). We brought the girl here and marked her 'hold for policewoman.' "On the way to the police station, the girl stated that she had not been giving any trouble, that the matron, Mrs. Armstrong, was drunk. After taking the above to the police station, we went back to the home and found the matron in her room under the influence of drugs or whisky. As she was in her own room and there was no one to leave in charge of the home, we left her there. We advised Lieutenant McCrary and Captain Weaver, who advised us the above."

Talk to Girls.

Early yesterday morning, Patrolmen Bessie O'Quinn and J. B. Howell and Detectives J. J. Chester and E. L. Hebrard went to the home and talked with the two girls. They then took them, along with Jane Moreland, to the solicitor general's office, where all three made sworn depositions to Investigator Charlie Stewart.

Mrs. O'Quinn then made out a police report naming Mrs. Armstrong as the "person wanted" and the charge as "assault and battery," and giving Jane Moreland as a witness.

"The victims reported to us," she wrote, "that about 9 o'clock the night of July 7, 1942, they were at the Cooper street home for girls smoking when Mrs. Armstrong, superintendent, saw them. She called them into her room upstairs and punished them for smoking cigarettes. Sarah Frances White was burned eight times on the arm and Myrtle Cameron was burned three times on the arm and three times on the neck. We went to the house and got the victims this morning and there we found Mrs. Armstrong under the influence of some drink. The odor seemed to be that of whisky. We carried the victims to the solicitor's office where Charlie Stewart took statements to be presented to the grand jury."

Grand Jury to Act.

Detective Chester said that the police would take no further action until the grand jury had heard the charges.

Regarding the girls' home, Frank Fling, clerk of the Fulton county commissioners, last night issued the following statement:

"The Community Home for Girls is operated by a board of trustees consisting of Mrs. Claude Smith, chairman; Mrs. Houston Johnston, vice chairman; Mrs. Leonard Hopkin Sr., Mrs. A. P. Treadwell and Mrs. W. N. Kilpatrick. It is an institution to which both the city and county make contributions as to other charitable organizations such as the Community Chest agencies. It is not operated by the county, nor under county supervision, but functions purely as a charitable organization for the care and protection of homeless girls. The trustees have the full responsibility for the operation of this institution."

Trustees Defend Matron.

A statement in defense of Mrs. Armstrong, signed by all the trustees mentioned by Fling, was issued last night.

"Mrs. Elizabeth Armstrong," the statement read, "has been matron of the Community Home for Girls for about seven or eight years. We consider here the best matron we have ever had. She has had wide experience at Slaton Farm and other places for social service work. The community home is supported by the county and the city of Atlanta. It is a place for any fallen girl to go, where she receives physical and mental rehabilitation, and where she is restored to respectability and useful citizenship."

"The county commissioners and Mayor Hartsfield have always been most sympathetic with the work. We are very sure that Mrs. Armstrong never touches liquor. We know that smoking among the girls is not allowed. In all justice to the home we feel that judgment muniqué said. "After stubborn battles our troops evacuated the town of Staryi Oskol. On other fronts there were no essential changes." Staryi Oskol was an objective of a German drive which developed in full force last weekend as the Germans sought to fight their way to the Don in their Kursk offensive.

The city, the southernmost point of a triangle formed with Kurak and Voronezh, is some 80 miles northeast of Kharkov, scene of heavy fighting this spring. The Russian counterattacks apparently have pushed aside heavy German forces from the main line of their offensive smash toward the Caucasus.

The violent struggle still raged on the Don water barrier, reports indicated, and the bulk of the German forces were reported held on the west bank. Repeated efforts to cross the stream were said to have been thrown back.

With these landings reported liquidated in several places, there was no confirmation of the German claim that Voronezh, main line rail city lying at the tip of a narrow "V" formed by the Don and Voronezh rivers, had fallen to the attackers.

Claim Not Repeated.

(The German high command did not repeat its Tuesday claim to the capture of Voronezh. Instead, the German communique on Wednesday said vaguely that the German and allied troops had made a considerable southward expansion of their "penetration" from "the area of Kharkov and Kursk"; that Russian counterattacks north-west of Voronezh failed at the cost of many Russian troops and much booty captured, and that "north and northwest of Orel" continuing Russian attacks were repelled. Orel is 150 miles northwest of Voronezh.)

Despite the success of the counterattacks, Red Star, the Russian army newspaper, said frankly that enemy pressure was being stemmed "with great difficulty."

The midday communique reported night-long battles west of Voronezh and Staryi Oskol, cities some 65 miles apart to which the storm center of the German offensive shifted on Monday from the Kursk-Beigorod sectors to the west.

It was on the Voronezh water-line that the struggle continued most intense.

Light German tanks tried to break through the Russian positions on the east bank at one of the original bridgeheads, army dispatches said, but met with no success. The Red air force and Red Army troops blocked the enemy's efforts to bring over new tanks and motorized infantry.

The Russian counterattacks also were reported to have diverted strong German forces from the main direction of their offensive. Whether this was northwest of Voronezh and in the Orel sector—as reported by the Germans—was not disclosed, but a large-scale battle was under way in a new arena.

Forty-five enemy tanks were estimated destroyed on the first day of this phase of the fighting. Tanks, infantry and cavalry were employed in the counter-

Musicians' Union Bans

Radio, Juke Records

NEW YORK, July 8.—(P)—The 130,000 members of the American Federation of Musicians (AFL) will make no more radio transmissions and juke box records after August 1, it was announced by union officials today.

The order to stop recordings, signed by President James C. Petrillo, went out to the members on June 25 in an effort to end competition of "canned music," the federation's headquarters said.

A spokesman said that it would mean juke box operators could get no more records after the present supply was worn out.

The spokesman said there was no objection to making records strictly for home consumption if these could be controlled, but added "that's where the question comes in."

79 Are Rescued As U-Boats Sink 3 Small Ships

Unofficial Tabulation Shows 347 Vessels Topped.

By The Associated Press.

The rescue of 79 seamen from three small cargo vessels destroyed by enemy submarines in the Atlantic area was disclosed in the Navy's announcements of the sinkings last night. Thirteen men were reported lost.

The three latest U-boat victims—one Dutch, one Latvian and one Canadian cargo carrier—boosted to 347 the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of Allied and neutral ship losses in the western Atlantic since America entered the war.

Survivors of the Latvian vessel reported their captain and a seaman were prisoners aboard the enemy submarine which over a week ago shelled and sank their ship off the Atlantic coast.

The 34 crewmen, landed at an east coast port after drifting for five days in lifeboats, related that the submarine commander drew alongside their shelled and abandoned vessel and placed a time bomb below decks, which shortly afterward blasted the ship to the bottom.

Enemy seamen gave the Latvians a course to follow to land, but it was not until July 4, their fifth day adrift, that rescue craft picked them up.

Thirty-seven crew members survived the submarine-sinking of the Dutch merchantman, torpedoed in the Caribbean May 12.

Sinking of the Canadian vessel in less than a minute after the submarine attacked her off the northern coast of South America a month ago was disclosed by three of eight survivors landed at a gulf port. Thirteen others were killed in the attack which broke the vessel in two. All eight rescued reported that the force of the explosion swept them overboard, but that they found a life raft after swimming for some time.

Davis Completing Organization To Handle War Information

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(P)—Elmer Davis is completing plans for the Office of War Information to control the issuance of government press releases concerning the war effort, his associates said tonight, and when necessary to issue statements under its own name to clarify any situations which might become muddled by conflicting utterances of officials or private individuals.

Davis is expected to issue his first major organizational order next week and to announce his top aides, said the associates, who preferred not to be quoted by name.

Some conflicts of opinion in the past—on the necessity for nationwide gasoline rationing, for instance, or on whether sugar supplies warrant increased rationing—have created confusion and tended to undermine public confidence in the course of action finally approved.

In such cases OWI intends to obtain information from all the agencies involved, arrive at the best conclusion possible and present it as the government's view, even though its finding might conflict with that of an agency or an official.

Under present plans virtually all releases concerning the war effort except those of the War, Navy and State departments and the White House will funnel through a central OWI news desk. There they will be checked for accuracy.

Fierce Battles Rage As Japs Seek To Link Singapore, Shanghai

CHUNGKING, July 8.—(AP)—The fight for China has gone into a new phase with fierce battles swirling around two rail line towns southwest of Nanchung, where the Japanese have struck toward Hunan province in a bid for control of the second vital link of an overland railway system to link Shanghai to Singapore, the high command disclosed tonight.

1st Enlistment In New Negro Battalion Made

South To Supply 500 for New Division of Marines.

Marine headquarters recently announced the first enlistment of Negroes in the newly created Negro Marine battalion.

The Marine Negro battalion, composed of around 900 men, of which 500 will be from the southern states, will be trained at a newly established base south of New River, N. C. First enlistments in the Negro corps will probably compose the noncommissioned section of the First Battalion. Quota for the Atlanta district during the month of July will be 40 men.

The new camp will be opened around the first of August. Negroes having training as barbers, truck drivers, clerks, cooks and bakers are urged to apply for enlistment at once, being used in the early occupation of the camp.

Application may be made at the Marine Corps Recruiting Station, 76 Forsyth street, N. W.

Office Seekers Asked To Omit Signs, Photos

Don't Mar Public Places, Courtland Gilbert Asks.

Fulton county candidates yesterday were requested not to beautify or mar public places with their photographs and posters during the coming campaign.

The request was made by Courtland Gilbert, secretary of the Fulton County Planning Commission, who pointed out that in 1940 all candidates abided by such an agreement.

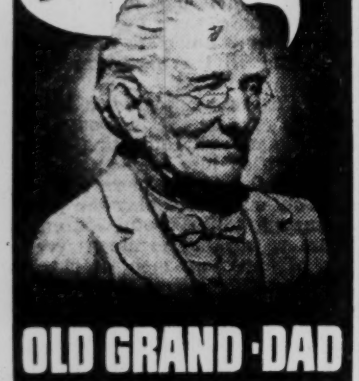

The commission, with women's and civic clubs, has long been seeking to get rid of the charge that you can't see Atlanta for the signs.

The effectiveness for campaign purposes of "not sticking your mug on peach and other trees" also was suggested by Gilbert. "This is one sure way of not alienating the affections of Fulton county's womanhood," he said.

Suppose Gary Cooper or Dorothy Lamour were running? he was asked.

"They aren't," he replied.

A communique said invasion columns which drove to Feng-chang and Changshu, 30 and 45 miles southwest of the Kiangsi provincial capital, failed to outflank Chinese positions and were engaged in a battle with heavy casualties for both sides.

A Central News dispatch said Japanese spearheads penetrated both towns but had been surrounded by the defenders.

The Japanese seemed launched upon a new effort to storm westward into Hunan, where they failed and were beaten back before in three drives toward Changsha from the north and other attacks across the Kiangsi border from the east.

A clear route, at least across the southeastern third of the province, would be needed to advance their plan to ease the load on their coastal shipping by winning a complete north-south railway system.

Already in Japanese hands are rail connections from Korea and Manchukuo through Shanghai to Hangchow. Attacking from Hangchow through Chekiang province and from Nanchang through eastern Kiangsi province the Japanese in the last month have won all but a bitterly-contested 25-mile segment of the first rail line needed to complete such a system.

Heavy Rains Over Georgia Favor Weevils

Tobacco Crop Hurt by Excessive Rainfall; Peanuts Fine.

Georgia's corn, vegetable and fruit crops are in good condition, but excessive rainfall is favoring boll weevils in the cotton fields, the Weather Bureau said yesterday in its weekly summary.

Rain fell in nearly all sections during the week on an average of four to six days. Augusta had the heaviest rainfall, recording 3.22 inches for the week ending Tuesday. Savannah had 1.74, Atlanta 1.14, Columbus 1.12 and Macon .86.

The bureau said boll weevil activity is becoming serious in central and southern counties and that a week of warm sunny weather is needed for the best development of cotton.

Too much rain also has been detrimental to tobacco. The report said curing operations, which had begun at a few places last week, were stopped. The abundant rains are expected to boost the poundage, but may affect quality, the report added.

Peanuts were reported in "fine" condition.

The Dying Time Has Come; You Are Asked To Give

On yesterday several thousand Russians died counter-attacking against the machineguns of the Germans, seeking to drive them back from the ground gained across the river Don.

It was another bloody chapter in the story that has been running for more than a year. Every day the guns sound. Every day Russians die.

On yesterday the Chinese fought on, for themselves and us.

On yesterday in Holland brave men eluded the eyes of the guards and put sand in bearings which will fall some Nazi machine when it is needed.

On yesterday in Czechoslovakia men and women dared the German death to help send a message to the English.

On yesterday in Greece women and children died of starvation and disease because that country had dared defeat the Italians and the Germans.

On yesterday the weary British soldiers in Egypt, always fighting, rested on their arms and waited for help. At home, in England, their wives, mothers and sweethearts, many of them bombed out of house and home, waited for the news.

On yesterday at USO camps in the war zones, in cities, in railroad camps weary soldiers, sailors and marines got rest, food and entertainment.

On yesterday the telegrams which begin: "The War Department regrets to inform you—" were received in homes in this country and some wife or mother read it and wondered how she'd meet the bills during the long period before the machinery of the pension would begin to grind.

On yesterday on a dozen fronts American fighting men flew their planes at the enemy; guided a submarine into hostile waters; steered a fighting battleship into action, or drove a clanking tank into the fighting where the guns were loud and the crash of metal like thunder.

That was on yesterday.

The day before it was the same.

Tomorrow it will be the same.

And the day after that.

Every day the Russians fight for us, die for us. Every day in some conquered country there are those who dare to defy in some way, great or small, the Nazi machine and the Nazi terror.

Every day the war goes on men die and give us more time.

Now, of course, our own men are dying.

The dying time has come again. Let us be blunt and frank. The dying time has come.

Because of that we are asked to make this the giving time. A time of giving, for the relief of all the distressed peoples in the war has been decreed.

You can give once—to those who give for you every day.

You can give once—for the distressed ones of those who died for you yesterday.

The United War Work Fund is asking for your contribution in the drive which began yesterday. Think it over. One contribution large enough to spread over ten organizations, all audited and certified. One contribution for ten causes.

The dying time has come. They are asking you but to give.

—BE PATIENT—VICTORY IS COMING—

Campaign Photos

All voters in Fulton county will watch with interest the reaction of candidates to public office to the request of Courtland Gilbert, secretary of the Fulton County Planning Board that they refrain from nailing their campaign photographs to trees, posts and other public places.

In the 1940 campaign, all candidates observed the request, with a resultant improvement of roadside conditions.

Women's and civic clubs have particularly been interested in keeping conditions as they were in the last campaign. These organizations can exercise great weight in an election and the candidates will do well to take notice and act accordingly.

The Constitution, too, joins in hoping for the best. Handsome as our candidates are, they don't look well on trees, posts and fences.

CAP Does Grand Job!

Military secrecy being what it is today, some of the jobs organized by civilians and run by civilians are not interesting in description. In other words, that which can be said does not dig deep enough to let the enemy know of brave deeds and actions; nor does it allow Americans to know what these civilians are doing.

That is as it should be in many cases, although those who argue that the public should be told more about activities on the home front have strong points.

Attention might be drawn, however, to the Civil Air Patrol, which has of late been the subject of many an article in magazines. No secret is the fact that the civilians—pilots, observers, radio operators and others—who make up the Georgia Wing of the CAP have been doing a jam-up job.

Organized as an auxiliary to our air arms, the Georgia Wing, led by Winship Nunnally, has proved itself as other wings in the 47 states have proved themselves. The CAP was not accepted with finality when the papers were signed for its organization under the Office of Civilian Defense.

The Army and the Navy do not accept promises. They want action. They got it from the Civil Air Patrol. They're getting it. First, the CAP flew parts for planes and messages. Then they started carrying military personnel, leaving Army and Navy planes for more valuable, as well as more suitable, service.

Now the CAP is doing bigger jobs. Its patrols are working hard every day. The Flying Minute Men of 1942 are helping as best they can.

That the help is noteworthy may be found in the fact that their activities are increasing daily.

The Civil Air Patrol flies on, its particular missions cloaked in secrecy.

That the CAP is doing a grand job, however, is no secret, military or otherwise.

Give Us Vanilla!

The registration period for the new gasoline rationing starts today. The restrictions will be severe and will cause inconvenience and trouble to the citizens of the eastern seaboard states.

Our people can stand hardship but we don't like discrimination. The government has made it clear that the curtailment of gasoline is for the twofold purpose of saving gasoline and tires. It hasn't made us understand why a pound of rubber saved in Georgia is more important than a pound in Montana or Indiana.

Georgia's two senators long ago took this position, and we commend them for it.

It has been suggested that we can look for universal rationing after the fall primaries; that Washington recognizes the inequity of the present plan but dares not adopt it nationwide until after the fall elections.

If this be Democracy at work—give us vanilla!

Bloody Marsh

It was very pleasant to read of the celebration on Tuesday of the victory at Bloody Marsh which the patriotic and energetic citizens of Glynn county arranged on the 200th anniversary of that battle.

It was fitting, too, that an Englishman, the Earl of Carrick, spoke there. After all the Georgians who scored that notable victory over the Spanish were, at the time of the victory, English soldiers under General Oglethorpe.

Later on, of course, they helped win Independence for the colonies. Nevertheless, it was a Georgia and an English victory which drove Spain from this part of the new world.

Today Georgians stand again with British soldiers fighting a common enemy. The celebration was most fitting.

Georgia Editors Say:

SLACKERS OR SCRAPPEES.
(From The Brunswick News.)
The average Georgian, we dare say, would holly deny that he is a slacker with regard to the war effort. But figures show that in at least one field we are not doing our part toward winning the war.

Release of the latest available figures shows that Georgia has contributed less than 2,000,000 pounds of scrap rubber to the national campaign. This is an average of .59 pound per capita as compared to the 1.52 pounds per capita for the country as a whole.

The President has said that "we want every bit of the used rubber you can possibly spare." But apparently Georgians have not taken this remark with all the seriousness they should. Nor are they properly appreciative of the fact that 92 per cent of the world's natural rubber sources are now held by Axis hands and that this country's capacity to produce synthetic rubber is still too far in the future to come anywhere near meeting the vital military needs of 1942 and 1943.

It seems to be placing a price on patriotism but so great is the need for scrap rubber that the government has offered to buy it, not merely take it as a gift as was done in the aluminum and paper campaigns. But whether you are willing to donate any scrap or prefer to make Uncle Sam pay for it, at least you can search the house from attic to cellar, from front to back yard, for such articles as may be acceptable. A piece of worn-out garden hose, a leaky water bottle, a pair of old galoshes—these and other forms of rubber are needed. They may be and doubtless are worthless to you, but they are invaluable to Uncle Sam.

LET THEM KNOW WE WILL FIGHT!
Editor, Constitution: Whether we like it or not America is going to be a military country from now on. It will have to be that to be at all. Uncle Sam is not going to be caught napping any more. When the war is over and we have peace it is going to be backed up with bombers. I believe in the Providence of God.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

ALEUTIAN ACTION WASHINGTON, July 8.—The latest naval communiques announcing that a total of five Japanese destroyers have been torpedoed in the Aleutian Islands by American submarines indicates that we are at last closing in on the invaders.

What the submarines did is looked upon as the forerunner of more drastic action to come. The fog-bound waters around that section of the Aleutians where the Japs have gained a foothold is more or less ideal for undersea craft operations. They were probably able to take up positions near Agattu, Attu and Kiska, the three islands occupied by the Japs, and knock off the destroyers as they came in and out.

Despite the concern that continues to be expressed in Alaska, the Navy has never taken the Japanese occupation seriously. Otherwise, the country would have seen a more deliberate effort to oust them. Aside from the submarine action, the only moves we have made against the invaders so far have been through the air. When weather permitted we sent a few bombers, some 800 miles distant.

A good guess is that we are laying a trap for the Japs, but before springing it we are waiting to see what they are about. No one has been able to advance a really good reason why they thought it necessary to gain a foothold in the Aleutians to begin with. If they had undertaken to capture our Dutch Harbor naval base in the region, that might have made sense, although it undoubtedly would have proved about as costly as their mission against Midway.

MILITARY VALUE Our own naval experts have never looked upon the fingertip section of the Aleutians as having any military value. Not only are the islands rugged and barren, making it extremely difficult to establish air bases, but they are in the midst of the north Pacific weather manufacturing center. Cold cross currents from the Arctic keep the area in a continuous fog.

The Japs have been able to maintain their footing chiefly due to these foggy conditions. Their supply ships and transports move in from the west with the fog, which then continues on to envelop Dutch Harbor and other naval bases. When it begins to lift sufficiently at Dutch Harbor for our planes to attack, the ships move out. Thus, bombing operations are difficult and very uncertain.

But the thing that arouses the suspicion that the Navy may be laying a trap for the Japs is the existence of new scientific instruments, we are known to have perfected for meeting just such military-flying conditions as these. It is one of our best kept secrets that we have now developed an instrument for flying which will permit a pilot to look down through fifteen or twenty thousand feet of the soupiest weather and see with the same clearness of a cloudless day.

A city might be completely clothed with fog and yet these instruments, which we are soon to install on all of our bombers, would be able to pick it out as clearly as though it were bathed in sunlight. The whole panorama below is spread out on a screen before the pilot's eyes.

RAIDS ON GERMANY Actually the new instruments—the product of some of our bright scientists, working in collaboration with the British—will make foggy weather a hindrance to our bombers. Because the bombers will be able to see without being seen, neither anti-aircraft fire or fighter planes would be able to get a focus on them, while they are permitted to go about their business leisurely.

The instruments are certain to have a telltale effect on bombing raids against German cities in the future, also. Under cloak of bad weather, British and American bombers will be able to do their deadly work. Therefore, bad weather has been the signal for halting bombing operations.

The instruments may have the power of proving the decisive factor in the war. Certainly they give us a tremendous advantage in the aerial warfare we are preparing to wage when flocks of our giant bombers are ready for massed service.

Maybe that the Navy has not yet sprung them on the unsuspecting Japs. Perhaps we are waiting for a bigger target than anything to pick it out in the Aleutians at the moment. Sooner or later, however, they are sure to get it and, when they do, there will probably be a small Japanese Dunkirk staged in the islands.

Sinking of the three or four destroyers off the occupied areas in a single day indicates that the Japs are engaged in no small-time operation. Perhaps the hour is approaching when we will be ready to give them the works.

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

SOLDIERS COLLECT 35,000 LBS. OF RUBBER
Editor Constitution: I have read your newspaper for the past several years, and am sure that you will publish this for your country and mine.

I, Sergeant Ernest H. Hall, and three other soldiers of the second group of the Replacement Training Center, Fort Knox, with one truck have gathered 35,000 pounds of rubber within the past 14 days.

I have gathered this rubber from farmers and in small towns in the Louisville (Ky.) vicinity. Ninety-five per cent of the people in this vicinity are not turning their rubber in. If the government would send out Army trucks throughout the country, we could gather in about 90 per cent more rubber than the government will ever get.

Most of the farmers throughout the country have at least one to five acres around their farmhouses, and if we don't send transportation to them, they will never turn it in, for about 50 per cent of the farmers do not have transportation, and 90 per cent of the farmers are working on defense jobs, and do not consider taking the tires in for the few pennies they might receive.

Knowing your paper as a patriotic American publication, as I am sure I do, I would appreciate it if you would let the people, as well as the government officials, know who are handling the rubber salvage campaign.

The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times, and neighboring papers of the state, think the work is well, but I don't think the government officials who are handling the rubber campaign know of this work. I would like to see Army trucks throughout the country gathering this rubber in, and I'm sure that your paper can do a great deal toward our great "Common Cause."

MORAL PRINCIPLE NEED SUPPORTING.
Editor, Constitution: Today our morale needs boosting to a high degree of consistency with the moral principles based on true religion, Christian religion. At least this is the opinion of many of the elders of our nation—men and women who are already true warriors in the battles of life. Many of them say that we are leaving religion out of this war. ## FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Standby Wages NEW YORK, July 8.—If the court please, I would like to say a few words on behalf of the local professional musicians around and about our country who often find themselves in competition with amateur talent under circumstances which make them seem unpatronized, arrogant and selfish if they seek a day's work or, anyway, the wages thereof.

Musicians are only sweet wind and vibrations and is a luxury and so on people, especially in our smaller communities, are the more impatient when the high school band, the file and drum corps of the Boy Scouts or the great band of the nearby military or naval post accepts a date to play at some public festival to which admission is paid by the public and the local union then steps in to demand stand-by wages for a certain number of its members, who are, themselves, local wage earners and taxpayers.

It is in the matter of character, about the same as the general run of their neighbors.

The situation is based on the so-called standby principle which is morally wrong and, therefore, unjustly upheld by the union, preposterous in the recent teamsters' case, but which, nevertheless, appeals strongly to the sympathy of fair people in special circumstances. In a typical, hypothetical case, an Army band will be engaged to play at a big military ball game for the USO or some thoroughly legitimate fund for the relief of the distress among the families of soldiers and sailors. If special seats or lights are needed for the occasion nobody in town would think of employing amateur carpenters or electricians and the pay of the workers, who will be local men and respected fellow citizens of the rest, is charged to the normal cost of production and deducted from the receipts. Nobody objects to that; no, the carpenters or electricians held up to scorn.

But the musicians of the community find themselves out of their particular job which is legitimate work in their line and accused of preying on charity if their business agent puts in for standby pay for them. Not only in war but in times of peace they find themselves competing with amateurs and usually under conditions which make them seem not only to lack public spirit, but to be anti-Boy Scout or anti-Servant or anti-American Legion or whatever.

There are relatively few opportunities for professional musicians to make a few dollars playing behind turnstiles. It is a crowded field and, what with radio in the home and piped-radio and the juke boxes in the dumps or cafes, the public patronizes live music only on occasion. During the World's Fair in New York a children's band from a high school in southern city raised money by popular subscription for a trip to New York to play a few selections at the special festivities in honor of their state. Their fellow townsmen were furious because the musicians' union in New York demanded a standby pay which, in undeniable practical effect, was a demand for tribute if the children were permitted to make an appearance for which they had practiced faithfully and on which they had set their hearts. But the professional musicians in their home town had been done out of the job and the travel by the little amateurs.

Vandal Arrangers One reason why our martial spirit does not express itself in music, although it is very expressive in other ways, is that our music has been horribly distorted and is unsuitable and even repugnant to the martial spirit. It is not brave or inspiring sound, but hideous noise and not music at all. But that is not the fault of the poor musicians. The play the music that is set before them and these dilemmas are the fault of a set of vandals called arrangers, who cannot create music themselves and, in their sullen envy of those who can, produce evil caricatures of music as Hitler's most hateful distortions of truth. They even mock "Anchors Aweigh" and "The Caissons Go Rolling Along" beyond recognition and probably that is an additional reason why the people prefer to hear service bands when they can for the services are literal-minded.

Most of the work of the professional musician is performed in unpleasant surroundings and in the company of people who are not at their best for his play, mainly in drinking places and our drinking habits are not stately. When there is a parade or a festival he is likely to be dealt out in favor of the amateur.

I do not suggest that professional standbys should be paid every time a post band gives a concert on a reservation or plays in a parade but I do propose that the public consider the musician's own side of each case and that where admission is charged he be considered as a fellow citizen who has to make a living, too.

have formed an opinion similar to this.

'Twas the Christ of Gethsemane—Forgotten by you and me—Who went alone one day—Deep—deep into the forest to pray—That this world of sinful men—Could have the power to win—In the battles of hate and strife—The wars to rage in a person's life.

'Twas He who foresaw the day—When men would kneel and pray—Bowed to Him—seeking at last—Forgiveness for the long-gone past—'Tis for struggles such as now—That we must seek somehow—And go unflinching through the night—Seeking, praying, for guidance by His light.

It is, therefore, a challenge to us—young and old alike—to take it our responsibility to make religion more closely parallel our hopes for an ultimate victory in the near future. A. P. COX JR., Pitts, Ga.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

POLITICAL MOONLIGHT AND ROSES As the Governor quits coyly playing footie under the table with the Russell voters in the state and comes right out with hugs and kisses, the whole pattern of his plot becomes clear.

The knife in Tom Linder's back was there for a purpose. The knife in Judge Shackelford's ribs was there for a purpose. There will be other knives.

The Talmadge plot to make the Russell campaign leaders over the state believe that he and the junior senator were sweethearts is based on the idea that Senator Russell wouldn't want to carry on any long-distance denial.

The idea was to kill the Russell leaders with love. There would be a few of the Talmadge boys thrown to the sharks, just as others have been thrown in the past.

Surprised Russell organization men would find themselves being given favors and appointments. It would look as if there had been a great union of the Talmadge forces and the Russell forces. They hoped to start a trend.

It was a shrewd and able plot and plan and worthy of the man who is one of the shrewdest the game has produced. It was just a little too shrewd.

It began to backfire before it was well started. For a very good reason—the convention of the delegates in October which can overrule the action of the state Democratic committee. The state convention delegates are the delegates of the winning candidate.

The Russell faction doesn't want that committee to throw Tom Linder—with the knife wound in his back and the farmers for him—into the race against Senator Russell.

And the committee can—if Ellis Arnall wins.

THE SUPREME COURT The Governor probably recalls the convention in 1938 which followed his unsuccessful effort to defeat Senator Walter George. The convention refused his request. He had no delegates. Senator Russell and his followers will recall it also.

The junior senator knows what would happen if the convention were to allow Tom Linder to run in the general election. The momentum of it might prove disastrous. The convention can do just that. Linder paid his money and got a receipt.

The senator now has no opposition to give him trouble. The senator, he it said to his credit, emphatically announced he not only had made no trade but had not been approached on one. He has not "jined" Gene.

The Talmadge effort to make it appear they were working hand-in-glove with the Russell voters is a shrewd move which can benefit only one person—the Governor.

If he is that desperate for votes he figures he has all to gain and nothing to lose. So, he attempted to stampede the Russell votes over the double-crossed bodies of those who supported him through long years when he was on the road up.

It was something new in Georgia politics. It indicates, a desperate man and a worried man. It is just possible that the people of Georgia, with their sons off fighting in a war to keep government clean and decent, are rising up in a great flood against this sort of thing.

It is possible a trend has set in for a change in governors. "ON WHAT MEAT—" There was a time when Eugene Talmadge was a beginner in politics, struggling to make his way up. Men helped him when it cost to help him.

The road behind him is strewn with men he used and cast aside. There are those who sacrificed for him, who did things for him when those things counted. Their names are well known. There is hardly a county which does not contain more than one man who was used and then discarded.

This new knifing of two old friends isn't new. It may react greatly. Not much is expected of a politician. Not too much honor, not too much character, not even too much honesty is expected of a politician.

One thing is expected. Gratitude. Already, over the state, they are asking— "What's the matter with Talmadge?"

Already they are remembering that it rained on him at Moultrie, breaking the Talmadge luck. They heard that speech. They knew something was wrong.

Now, they have seen the knifings in the effort to put over a coup d'etat by Russell votes by indicating a deal. That is exploded.

All over the state friends of the men double-crossed and cast aside will begin to wonder about themselves and others. One thing is expected of a politician—gratitude. He is not expected to scorn the steps by which he climbed to the top.

"On what meat doth this Caesar feed that he has grown so great?"

Any Boy Who Can Carry Water Is Old Enough to Help When the House Is Afire
By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Should boys of eighteen be drafted? The only fair and reasonable way to answer that question is to ask another. Can boys of that age qualify as soldiers in modern warfare?

If they can, they should serve. For this is truly a war of survival, and every person, regardless of age, sex or race, must share the burden of it and do whatever he can to help win.

War Department records show that many thousands of boys under eighteen served in the Civil War. There were even a few hundred of thirteen and fourteen. These were not mere drummer boys; they were fighting men who shared all the hardships and dangers.

Boys of eighteen are not children. In recent years we have seen many of that age driving their own cars on the highways at breakneck speed; many drinking hard liquor and consorting with the wrong kind of women; many who drifted into crime and are now in prison. These were products of the times, more sinned against than sinning; but if they were old enough to play the part of evil men, surely they were old enough to be useful citizens.

In other days, when life was harder, boys of eighteen were seasoned men. Read the biographies of important men, or check with those you happen to know, and you will discover that a surprising number left home at the age of sixteen to make their own way in the world.

Few modern boys, with the exception of those hardened by farm work, are tough enough to be commandos. But boys of eighteen are ideal material for pilots, bombardiers, radiomen, navigators, jeep and tank drivers. They learn fast; they are daring; they are resilient, and, above all, they have a split-second reaction that is lost in a few years.

England's best squadron leaders, now 21 or above, began training at eighteen or nineteen. Our boys, if taken in service now, would not be rushed to the front. They would need long training. But they would get the training while they are best qualified to take it, and would be toughened experts by the time we are ready to blast Tokyo and Berlin.

The best college football players are those who were stars in high school.

Hail the dawn! Watch rosy Aurora gild the sullen skies. Why, goodness gracious, Miss Agnes, am I waxing poetic? It sure looks like it. I don't know why I put that "sullen" before skies except that it seemed kinder rhythmic. That sentence needed a two-syllable word with the accent out in front. Sounds pretty good, doesn't it?

Maybe the skies were sullen. Sort of dark and overcast and half promising rain. But why "skies"? There's only one sky—unless you count east and west and—but if you're going to box the compass you've got to be west and all those 64 marks a sailor must learn. I never was a sailor, so all I had to bother about was to check up on the directory and find whether an Atlanta number was N. E. or S. W. For newspaper purposes. Any darn fool except in the post office system knows that Howell Mill road, just to take an example, is N. W. But does the postmaster know it? He does not. Every now and then I receive a letter addressed to me at home and the rubber stamp marks indicate it has been run down by Directory Searcher No. 1 to Directory Searcher No. 24. The stamp marks don't show it, but they may have called in the FBI before they could run me down. And when I get it I find it's a mimeographed sheet from Monogram films announcing a picture which flopped three years ago. I wonder why directory searchers never search the telephone book?

But what, you may ask, has all this to do with Aurora and the rosy dawn? Thinking it over, I fear I have wandered around a bit. I am off on a side road with a dead end.

On Early Rising

My Bartlett's Quotations is not at hand, but I think it was a poet named Saxe who paraphrased Don Quixote's pal, Sancho Panza (I'm putting this in to show how erudite I can be on occasions) in condemning the fool who recommended early rising.

I agree with the source, whatever it was. The farmer, I realize, must get up at dawn to milk the cows—if he has a cow. And the farm hands must toil from "can to can" which means from first light to dark, in the season. But I am reliably informed that when there is no farm work to be done a number of rural residents get up at first break of day so they will have more time to loaf, chew tobacco and spit at a crack. That's me. Not that I chew tobacco—once, at the tender age of ten, cured me of that—but I have acquired a peculiar type of insomnia.

Unless something unusual turns up for entertainment I can retire at 7 p. m. and sleep like a baby—except for weird snores and unintelligible mutterings—until dawn. Then I wake up—and when I wake up I am waked up, for good.

The Mistress of the Manor, on the other hand, rarely gets to sleep before 2 a. m. She reads, she turns her bedside radio on so softly nobody else can hear it. And along in the still hours of the morning when nothing can be heard but that Southern Railway whistle she slumbers.

Perhaps I'll try to slip down stairs and get the morning paper and gloat over what I've written and wonder why the hell it got such a darn poor position. And then the dog will hear me and begin to whine and complain, so I'll have to let him in and tell him that if he barks again I'll beat his head off. And let him out into the front yard for a moment—in which he ranges all the garbage cans within 20 blocks. In the meantime I'm trying to avoid making any noise louder than winding my watch—which I should have wound last night.

Let's Start Over

But about the dawn and Aurora and all that. It isn't so bad, unless you've stayed up all night to look at it, when it has somewhat of a bluish tinge.

The Mistress of the Manor having deserted me—briefly, I trust—I still find myself awake about 6 a. m., this new accused eastern war time, which would be 4 o'clock according to the constitution and Exodus, and I know there is no more sleep for me than there was for Mr. Macbeth.

But now I can get up and kick over seven chairs if I desire, go out and get the paper, start the coffee brewing and go out into the back yard—if it isn't too cold. I darn near started the furnace going on the Fourth of July, it was so chilly in our house.

So I am beginning to learn about the beauty of the sunrise. And something of natural geography. But mine comes up somewhere east of Piedmont avenue—right over the Colonnade restaurant, which isn't open then, and climbs surely but surely over Chris Esig's house, which should be torn down because it interferes with my sunrise. And after that, it keeps on climbing and climbing. And the morning gets lighter and lighter and the birds start singing and the chipmunks play around the rock garden. And pretty soon it's light enough to dig up the paper again and see if anything new has developed in the case of Little Orphan Annie. But nothing ever has.

Chicago Girl Is Witness in Saboteur Trial

Ex-Fiancee of One of Men Testifies; Case Marked by Secrecy.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—Herbert Hans Haupt, one of the eight would-be saboteurs from Germany on trial for their lives, today heard a former fiancée, who testified against him, was revealed, testify against him—presumably to his erstwhile activities as a free American citizen with a yen for helping Hitler.

The witness was Mrs. Gerard Melind, pretty 24-year-old Chicago divorcee, a bright figure in her white suit, flowered blouse and white turban against a grim setting of barricaded corridors, uniformed judges and heavily-armed guards.

From the fact that she was on the stand—one of the few to seeep from the highly secret proceedings—it was possible to speculate that the prosecution was tracing the earlier background of the defendants before taking up the recital of their recent activities.

All of them were in this country for considerable periods before returning to Germany, attending the Nazi school of sabotage, and boarding U-boats from which they landed in rubber boats, with a fortune in American currency and quantities of explosives, on Long Island and Florida beaches.

Secrecy at Trial.

They were arrested soon afterward by agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Their apprehension prompted the senate judiciary committee today to approve the award of an "appropriate medal of honor" to J. Edgar Hoover, the chief of the FBI.

Secrecy and unusually heavy and well-armed guards were the first order of the trial. The men were lodged several days ago in the District of Columbia jail, and a military detail assigned to walk post about it. Today they were loaded into two huge black vans and taken to the Justice Department building. Police lined the route and the vans were followed closely by an armored Army scout car with its machineguns at the ready. It was assumed that one or more guards were assigned to each prisoner; for otherwise an eight could easily have been accommodated in one vehicle.

The vans entered the flagged courtyard in the center of the block-square Justice Department building through a seldom-used gate and the prisoners were unloaded in the basement of the building, surrounded by troops. Then they were taken by a private elevator to the fifth floor. The trial is being held in what is customarily an FBI class room.

Press Is Barred.

Elmer Davis, director of the new Office of War Information, proposed to arrange limited coverage of the trial by the press but this was vetoed on the ground that much of the testimony would touch on highly secret military information. Davis then proposed to have a member of his staff in the courtroom to furnish a censored account of the proceedings but this plan also was rejected.

Davis was represented by associates, who declined to permit use of their names, as apprehensive lest a star-chamber trial afford propaganda for the controlled radio and press of Axis countries and furnish a precedent for subsequent spy and sabotage cases.

In addition to Haupt, the prisoners are George John Dasch, Edward John Kerling, Ernest Peter Burger, Henry Harm Heinck, Werner Thiel, Richard Quirin and Hermann Otto Neubauer.

BLOOD OF FREEMEN.

You know about the American Red Cross blood donor service. Our government is asking for thousands of units of human blood a month to be used in transfusions to save the lives of soldiers, sailors and civilians suffering from shock following injuries, hemorrhage, or burns. The Red Cross blood donor service is the answer to this request. It is meeting a basic national defense need. Through this service volunteer blood donors have an opportunity to take a vital part in the war program.

By a miracle of modern science, blood donations are so treated that the plasma, or liquid content from which corpuscles have been removed, may now be dried and kept indefinitely. It is thus ready for emergency transfusion even under chaotic conditions of battle, disaster, or accident ashore, at sea, or in the air. The blood donor service provides for the establishment of facilities for preparing blood plasma in a limited number of laboratories. Donation centers in the larger Red Cross chapters, located within 12 hours' shipping distance, send to these laboratories the blood contributed by the army of volunteers. Mobile units, carrying the necessary equipment and staffs, supplement these centers. Any healthy man or woman between the ages of 21 and 60 is eligible to give his or her blood for this very worthy service. Engagements may be made by telephone for donations. Competent physicians and nurses are in charge of these centers.

It takes about 45 minutes to draw a pint of blood from the donor's veins. Nourishment is immediately given the donor, and, after a few minutes of rest, he or she is ready to go on about his or her work. A healthy man or woman may safely give a pint of blood every eight weeks. You not only have the satisfaction of knowing that you have given blood for some soldier or sailor or civilian, but you have the added satisfaction of knowing your blood "type," which may be of great value in some future emergency. A pint of your blood in the hands of an Army or Navy doctor or nurse, may save the life of an American soldier or sailor. Thus you are giving yourself for our national defense.

I am going for a transfusion today, and I count it one of the highest privileges of my life. I have given transfusions for sick people, but this is the first opportunity I have had to give my blood for some man who is hazarding his life for my country. As we give our blood, let us remember that "The Flag of our stately battles, not struggles of wrath or greed, its stripes are a holy lesson, its spangles a deathless creed; It is red with the blood of freemen and white with the fear of the foe; And the stars that fight in their courses 'gainst tyrants its symbols know."

Swinburne was right when he said, "Not with dreams, but with blood and with iron, shall a nation be molded at last." Let us then, gladly and gratefully, give our blood for freedom.

"UNCLE SAM" wants your Gas Refrigerator to LAST!

It's vital to victory to make what you have last! Your silent Gas refrigerator will preserve food better and give even longer service if you follow these simple instructions.

DEFROSTING SUGGESTIONS

1. Frost should be removed periodically to keep refrigerator operating at peak efficiency.
2. Frequent defrosting will make it easier to remove ice trays and prolong the life of trays by preventing the damage that often results when trays are forcibly dislodged with tools.
3. Your gas refrigerator has less work to do at night. Take advantage of this by defrosting in the late afternoon or early evening, so that refrigeration can be started before you go to bed.
4. Do not cover grill at back of refrigerator.
5. Put food in as small containers as possible.
6. Never forget to reset your temperature control to normal after you have done quick freezing.

- CLEANING SUGGESTIONS
1. The outside finish may be cleaned with a damp cloth. Occasionally it may be necessary to use a small amount of mild, smooth white soap and warm water.
  2. Clean off any grease or oil which gets on the outside finish or on the rubber door gasket. (Grease or oil destroys rubber).
  3. To clean the interior of the refrigerator, remove the shelves, and wash the porcelain finish with a cloth wet in lukewarm soda solution. (1 teaspoon of baking soda to 1 quart of water).

CORRECT USE OF REFRIGERATOR

1. Don't overcrowd.
2. Place the food on the shelves so that there is room for air to circulate around it.
3. Do not cover refrigerator shelves with paper or oilcloth.

Week's Movies Reach New High for Year

"Mrs. Miniver" is here at last. This great movie opens today at Loew's Grand theater.

Add to this, three comedies—"Take a Letter, Darling," currently at the Fox; "They All Kissed the Bride," in fourth week at the Rialto; and "The Magnificent Dope," with Henry Fonda, which opens at the Capitol tomorrow; one drama, "Moonrider," with Jean Gabin, new French star, and you have what sums up to be the best week's entertainment of the year.

Loew's Grand

A pre-release engagement of "Mrs. Miniver," M-G-M.'s great photoplay of England at war, starring Greer Garson, Walter Pidgeon, Teresa Wright, Richard Ney and featuring a host of others, opens at Loew's Grand today.

The picture's opening finds the people of a small English village quietly going about their daily work. Their minds are pinned on the roses, the latest in head-gear for milady, new automobiles and cats. The little things which England today is fighting for.

Then, suddenly, war is forced upon these English people by the Nazis. Their homes and churches become the front-line trenches in a new kind of war—the people's war. How these brave people, for the time being, give up the things they love, abolish social ties, and fight for their very existence with staunch determination provides the plot for the remainder of the story.

Mrs. Miniver is played by Greer Garson. Walter Pidgeon is Vin Miniver, father-husband. Miss Wright and Nye play the parts of war lovers. He is a RAF pilot, she his bride. Henry Travers is the station master, who plays an important supporting part. Reginald Owen is the air raid warden and Dame May Whitty is seen as Lady Beldon, aristocratic flower-grower. This show should be seen from the beginning. To avoid crowds it would be a good idea to catch a matinee.

Roxy

Jean Gabin, the new "Gable From Paris," who has a reputation for breaking feminine hearts, makes his American film debut in "Moonrider," which opens at the Roxy tomorrow.

As a California dock worker, a role familiar to Gabin since he spent much of his life in France on the waterfront, the new French star has the rugged, romantic lead opposite Ida Lupino.

The story was adapted from William Robertson's best-selling novel, "Moonrider," and was produced by Mark Hellinger. It's a Twentieth Century-Fox Picture.

All Kissed the Bride" presents Miss Crawford in the role of a sophisticated business executive whose only aim in life is a business career. Melvyn Douglas her mind when he plants a kiss on her cheek. After this, anything can and does happen.

Allen Jenkins, in a supporting role, provokes many laughs with his fast line of chatter and his excellent jitterbug number.

Rhodes

"Tarzan's New York Adventure," in which Tarzan (Johnny Weissmuller) and his bride (Maureen O'Sullivan) come to New York City and do the big city up in grand style, moves to the Rhodes today for a holdover engagement.

Decidedly something new in the line of a Tarzan picture, this new cinema leaves the jungle setting shortly after the beginning for the bright lights of Broadway. Cheeta, the chimpanzee, steals the show with his monkey shins.

OPA May Discard Ceiling on Peanuts; To Raise Jam Price

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—Ceiling prices for frozen fruits and vegetables of the 1942 crop and for jams, jellies and preserves made from the new fruit will be raised shortly. Price Administrator Leon Henderson announced tonight, and the ceiling on peanuts and peanut butter may be discarded entirely in September.

These departures from the universal price ceiling followed by slightly more than a week Henderson's announcement that retail prices of canned and dried fruits of the 1942 pack would be boosted 15 per cent or more.

The new price adjustments will approach that percentage, officials said, but may not soar quite as high. They will apply at the packers', wholesalers' and retailers' levels.

Henderson said that peanuts and peanut butter might be removed completely from the universal price ceiling when marketing of the 1942 crop opens in September, or that as an alternative, "appropriate adjustments will be made." The new pricing formula for frozen food packers permits each packer to add to his last year's price the actual increase in costs of raw fruit and vegetables since last year, plus 12 per cent of the 1941 price to cover advances in labor and operating costs.

"Although the strawberry pack is about completed, most of the other fruits and vegetables are still in the fields," the price administrator said. "Any action imperiling or abolishing normal merchandising practices might well hamper or entirely blight prospects for the bumper pack, which is an essential part of the war program."

"Delay might cause the crops to rot in the fields. Hence, lacking government aid in absorbing such increased costs, OPA has no alternative but to shift the increased burden onto the consumer's shoulders."

JAPS RECEIVE RUSSIAN.

TOKYO (From Japanese Broadcasts) July 8.—(P)—Jacob A. Malik, Soviet Russia's new ambassador to Japan, presented his credentials today to Emperor Hirohito in a ceremony in the imperial palace.

AWARD WINNER—Selected as the final recipient of The Constitution's Mrs. Miniver award, Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, together with the six Mrs. Minivers whose names already have been announced, will be the guest of Loew's Grand theater tonight at the opening of the MGM production based on Jan Struther's best-seller, Mrs. Richardson is pictured with her bouquet of Mrs. Miniver roses.

Loew's Grand Audience To Meet Mrs. Miniver Winners Tonight

Seven Women Who Are Aiding War Effort To Be Introduced.

Tonight at 9:15 o'clock Atlanta will meet Mrs. Miniver. It will be a rather unusual introduction, for Mrs. Miniver is seven people, seven Atlanta women who were honored in The Constitution's search for those typical women who are daily going about the business of winning a speedier victory.

The efforts of these women have been unheralded until now, but through the co-operation of Loew's Grand theater, The Constitution has made an effort to honor them all by turning the spotlight on the activities of some who are typical of many, many courageous and service-minded women.

The Mrs. Miniver(s) whom Atlanta will meet tonight will be presented to the first night audience for the M-G-M picture, "Mrs. Miniver," at Loew's theater by Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution.

Guests of the theater, they will sit together to view the film which tells the story of Mrs. Miniver, that courageous Englishwoman who is portrayed by Greer Garson. Word came from Hollywood yesterday that Miss Garson, star of the film, is sending flowers to each of the recipients. She also expressed regret that she will be unable to be in Atlanta for the opening of the film.

Mrs. Minivers selected in The Constitution's contest include Mrs. Dan Shipp, of 661 Spring street; Mrs. Paul K. Pate, of 65 Rocky Ford road; Mrs. Alice Cornelson, of 319 Holderness street; Mrs. Byron Mathews, of 946 Virginia avenue; Mrs. Muggsy Smith, of 439 North Highland avenue; Mrs. Maud Curtis, of 696 Julian street; and Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, of 181 Fourteenth street.

Injured Chinese Pilot at Lawson Rarin' to Fight Japs

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek has some boys who will pursue military education 2,000 miles in one year, moving books, classes, equipment a distance as great as the length of the Atlantic seaboard with Jap bomber planes on their coattails. All because they want a crack at the Emperor.

Sub-Lieutenant Hsun Chiang Huang—now at Lawson General hospital—is one of those soldiers.

In 1938—the second year of the Sino-Japanese scrap—Huang was in his senior year at the Generalissimo's Military Academy, the West Point of China. He enrolled at his father's home town, where his father was a wealthy textile manufacturer, and studied under more or less ordinary circumstances until the Japs put fire behind the organization. Then the school had to shift.

And that isn't all the recuperating pilot at Lawson General hospital knows about Hirohito. When he took his second lieutenant in the Chinese infantry he bought candy and sent it to the Jap prisoners just because he was a supply officer and because Huang is the kind of a guy that he is—a friend to foe and ally alike. And he won't say the Japs are the worst men in the world but he does say—

"Not so good—not so bad."

He decided to win his wings and served the China Air Corps for two and a half years before the Generalissimo selected him in a group to come to America and receive United States Army Air Forces training.

Now he wears his orange-centered wings of China above Uncle Sam's silver wings.

Plane Cracks Up.

Huang took his primary, basic and advanced flight training, then donned his wings and went to Dale Mabry Field, Tallahassee, Fla., for the finishing touches as a pursuit pilot and if he hadn't cracked up in a P-39 plane on May 29th, he'd probably be flying along 't he Burma Road today. The others in his class left Tallahassee some time ago. Since he hasn't heard from them he figures they're back at home now.

To talk with Lieutenant Huang, none would know he is with the Japs except to concede the normal reaction of every Chinese to the invaders. But he has reason to look for the day when he can pilot a pursuit ship right through a Jap squadron. For the enemy has killed his brother, he aunt, his girl friend and the last communication from his father came from Hongkong, so he hasn't any idea what might have happened to this last remaining member of his family.

Landscape Artist.

That's why Huang awoke Tuesday morning before anyone else and said, in effect: "Fellows, we're gonna have a great big party today—ice cream on me. This is my country's sixth year in the war."

Of course, Huang couldn't speak that freely because his knowledge of English has come entirely from the tutelage of his buddies at Lawson. In five weeks they've taught him the rudiments of conversational English and he speaks well enough now that any man in Ward 3-A could tell you all about this 24-year-old soldier who had several bids to old fame before the scrap began.

A landscape artist, Huang was vying for even greater recognition as a Chinese artist when the fighting began. He knows the history of art back as far as 1,824 years ago when fresco was sweeping China as the most popular form of art. He lectured for almost two hours at the Florida State College for Women when he was at Dale Mabry Field tracing Chinese art history. His speech ran: "Ladies. . . Then he dropped into Chinese and let an interpreter translate him.

Huang is regarded by his buddies at Lawson hospital as one of the brainiest boys they've ever known. He's alert, full of energy even though his legs yet are a bit weak, and says he likes it fine except—"Liquid run me crazy." His wired-together jaws haven't let him chew a morsel of food since his crack-up.

This pilot doesn't know how long before he can get home and help finish this scrap. He's raring to go and as soon as physicians release him at Lawson he will check back with Dale Mabry Field and hopes then to be off to the battle.

and desperate. He sees defeat staring him in the face. For several months he has been trying to get my support and the support of my good friend, Ryburn Clay, in his race for Governor and we both declined to support him, so now Governor Talmadge is doing us like he is doing a great many of his other former friends. He is jumping on and denouncing his former supporters who have now left him and who have refused to support his re-election.

"All I have to say is this. If Governor Talmadge spends his time during this campaign denouncing his former friends who have left him and who have refused to support him for re-election, he will be a very busy man. "Gene knows that he has never won a race against a single opponent. This fact is about to run him crazy."

Money for 'Slush Fund,' Says Governor.

By The Associated Press. Governor Talmadge yesterday said he considered an increase in gasoline prices "an effort to raise a slush fund for lobbying purposes by certain oil interests" and asked a congressional investigation.

He tied into his charge the fact that Wiley Moore, Atlanta oil company executive, has been named treasurer of the gubernatorial campaign of Ellis Arnall.

CHINA PILOT RECUPERATES—Sub-Lieutenant Hsun Chiang Huang is one of Chiang Kai-shek's fliers. He came to the United States several months ago to pick up a few western pointers on pursuit flying. In the last stages of his training he was injured in a plane crash and is recuperating at Lawson General hospital. His buddies have taught him an understandable conversational English. In the center, he is pictured with Lieutenants Wade Beesley, bombardier, and Oliver G. Summerton, infantry officer.

PURSUED EDUCATION 2,000 MILES—When Sub-Lieutenant Hsin Chiang Huang was finishing his education at Chiang Kai-shek's military academy, China's West Point, the Jap planes got on the school's coattails, and all-in-all the cadets trailed their education 2,000 miles that year. Now Huang is a fighter pilot, wears the wings of the China and United States Army Air Corps.

attorney general and Talmadge's only rival for the governorship. Gasoline prices in Georgia and other eastern states were increased two and a half cents a gallon Monday under authority of the OPA with the announced purpose of meeting increased handling costs due to transportation by rail and truck instead of by tanker.

Reveals Letter. Making public a letter to Senator George and all other members of the Georgia congressional delegation, he asked that Georgia along with other states be given "justice."

"We have just received news," the letter said, "that an advance of two and a half cents per gallon has been placed on gasoline in Georgia and the other restricted states."

"Gasoline sold in Columbus, Ga., is two and a half cents per gallon higher than in Girard, Ala., which as you know, is just across the state line, and at West Point, Ga., where the state line runs right through the town, on the Georgia side, it costs two and a half cents per gallon more than on the Alabama side."

"Gasoline is hauled from some of the pipeline stations in Georgia by truck back to Alabama, and sold two and a half cents per gallon cheaper than they are selling it right out of the pipeline here in Georgia."

"I am of opinion that this is an effort to raise a slush fund for lobbying purposes by certain oil interests before legislative bodies, and also to elect candidates for their own interests.

"I wish that you would have an investigation made of this matter immediately, and see that Georgia, along with other states, is given justice."

"In yesterday's (Tuesday's) issue of The Atlanta Journal on page two the following news item might give you a clue to start the investigation:

"Clay and Moore head Arnall drive. "Attorney General Ellis Arnall, candidate for Governor, Tuesday announced the appointment of Ryburn Clay, president of Clay-Moore, Inc., and a widely known businessman, as chairman of his campaign finance committee. At the same time, Mr. Arnall announced the appointment of Wiley L. Moore, chairman of the board of the Wolford Oil Company, as his campaign treasurer."

Canal, Pipe Line Measure Passes Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—The Senate Commerce Committee today approved a $93,000,000 measure authorizing construction of the Florida barge canal and two pipe lines and enlarging of the Gulf waterway after hearing a forecast that the east coast's petroleum requirements might be met by the end of the year.

When it voted its 11-to-3 approval the committee had before it a report by J. R. Parton, director of transportation in the petroleum co-ordinator's office, estimating potential daily deliveries of 1,429,000 barrels of oil with completion by December 31 of upwards of a dozen pipeline construction and readjustment projects.

Parton said this was 62,000 barrels in excess of average needs for this year, but added that increased demands were likely because of the accelerated war production program.

The director said the pipeline program now contemplated, including construction of a 24-inch line from Texas to southern Illinois, was calculated to speed up deliveries to the east by 275,000 barrels a day above the 954,000 barrels he reported had been moved overland on June 20.

Tanker Deliveries. In addition, he estimated deliveries of 200,000 barrels by tankers, indicating hope for solution of the submarine menace off the east coast.

The bill approved by the committee carried two pipeline projects designed to hasten transportation of the gasoline-starved eastern states, in addition to the $44,000,000 high-level lock barge canal across Florida which would take about three years to complete.

One of these pipelines, to be built from the vicinity of Port St. Joe, Fla., and other Gulf coast points to the St. Johns river, would cost approximately $10,000,000. The other, from the Tinsley oil field in Mississippi to either Charleston, S. C., or Savannah, Ga., would cost $13,000,000. Secretary of War Stimson opposed construction of the latter because he said it would require 45,500 tons of steel.

Offers Petroleum Solution. Also authorized was enlargement of the Gulf intercoastal waterway from Apalachee bay to Corpus Christi, Texas, and its extension to the vicinity of the Mexican border.

Senator Pepper said the bill offers the solution not only to the petroleum shortage but to the general transportation shortage between the Gulf coast and the Atlantic seaboard, and expresses "the determination of congress that everything possible to meet the petroleum shortage as an emergency measure shall be done."

"It also authorizes the government to proceed at once, if the President so directs," Pepper added, "to construct such pipelines without waiting for private enterprise to do so."

Sugar Is Assured For Peach Canning

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—Southern peach growers were assured today by Chairman Fulmer, Democrat, South Carolina, of the House Agriculture Committee, that sufficient sugar would be made available to permit canning of this year's crop.

Fulmer said he had been promised by Leon Henderson, price administrator, that "peach growers will be able to obtain sugar for the canning of choice or better grades," the required amount to be obtained after application to local rationing boards.

Henderson reiterated, Fulmer added, a policy that "no part of the food supply of this country should be permitted to be wasted because of lack of sugar."

U. S. Submarine Hits Fifth Jap Ship Off Alaska

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—A lone American submarine, following up the smashing undersea attack on Japanese warships in the Aleutian islands on the Fourth of July, was reported today to have torpedoed and probably sunk an enemy destroyer last Sunday in the vicinity of Kiska Island. Announcement of the action was made in a Navy communiqué which noted that this was the fifth enemy destroyer sunk or damaged by American subs in the Aleutians area during the two-day period July 4-5.

The Independence Day operation, carried out by at least two submarines, resulted in the sinking of two destroyers at Kiska and one at Agattu. A third destroyer at Kiska, which is 585 nautical miles west of Dutch Harbor, was left "burning fiercely."

Thus in two days the submarines, pressing home their attack under incessant fog which had hampered aerial bombardment, raised the enemy's ship losses in his attempts to consolidate his positions on American soil to five sunk, one probably sunk and nine damaged.

And the toll of Japanese ships taken by American submarines in the war to date as reported in Navy communiqués was raised to 47 sunk, 14 probably sunk and 13 damaged.

Oldest School Bell To Ring For Marthasville Banquet

• • • SIX YEARS after the laying out and naming of Marthasville, now Atlanta, Mrs. George C. Smith opened her select female school. The first of its kind in the town, its doors opened in January, 1848. One of the teachers was lovely young Mary White, of Marietta, who later became Mrs. Patterson M. Hodge, of Atlanta. The old-fashioned hand-bell which she used to call pupils to their classes has been zealously preserved throughout the ensuing 94 years as the town's oldest school bell.

The bell's long silence will be broken next Saturday evening when it will ring out to call several hundred diners to their places on the terrace of the Biltmore hotel. Most appropriate will be the use of the bell, for the occasion will be the celebration of the centennial anniversary of the founding of Marthasville.

The Atlanta Historical Society is sponsoring the event, at which more than 60 descendants of Marthasville's founders will be guests of honor. Among them will be Mrs. A. B. Sanders, a great niece of the pretty school teacher who first used the bell and who has no living direct descendants.

Mrs. Sanders' presence at the honor table, however, will be occasioned by the fact that she will represent her grandfather, Willis Carlyle, one of the town's early residents, whose wife was a sister of Mary White Hodge.

Another interesting feature of the dinner will be the presence of two real daughters of the town of Marthasville, who are, as far as is known, the only living people in the state whose fathers were listed as original residents of the little town which grew into the city of Atlanta. One is Miss Lulu Collier, whose father was George Washington Collier, and the other is Mrs. William Luther Roberts Sr., of Dalton, the former Carrie Nichols, daughter of William Pryor Nichols. Mrs. Roberts is the mother of Mrs. Robert H. Jones Jr., and she will come to Atlanta this week to visit her daughter for the auspicious anniversary banquet.

The Atlanta Historical Society, incidentally, has perpetuated the centennial in a set of 12 exquisite after-dinner coffee cups and saucers of Wedgwood Queensware, which will be heirlooms of future years, and which are an unusual "find" for collectors.

Although only one decorative motif is employed in the set, each cup is individual, in that it depicts a different person or building associated with the history and traditions of Atlanta. The saucers match the basic design of the cups, and in the center of each appears the quaint Phoenix seal of the city.

• • • WHEN Mrs. Mark Cooper Pope presided at a celebration of the Atlanta D. A. R., she was overwhelmed with gift flowers from her host of admirers.

She strung the shoulder corsages on a ribbon and wore them as a necklace. Someone told her she looked like a race horse from the Vanderbilt stables after winning a grand race.

To which Mrs. Pope replied: "I don't mind looking like a winning race horse. I just hope I don't look like Balaam's ass."

• • • THE children's classes at the High Museum have proven so popular that the membership committee has planned special entertainment for patrons of the classes. An art appreciation hour will be held today from 10 to 11 o'clock, and again next Thursday at the same hour.

Elizabeth Coggins (Mrs. Jack) Jones, who is noted for her delightful informal talks, will speak today on the famous Dutch master, Holbein. Patrons will gather for the talk in the Haverly memorial library at the museum.

Next Thursday the speaker will be Mary Shedd (Mrs. Robert L. Jr.) Foreman, her subject to be Joshua Reynolds, noted English portrait painter. Mary, in addition to being thoroughly conversant with her subject, speaks with a ready and sprightly wit, so a treat is in store for her audience.

On July 23 the committee has planned an open house, which will be held from 11:30 to 12:30 at the museum for patrons of the junior classes.

• • • A GROUP of former students, in addition to those who will attend Gulf Park Seminary the coming year as first-year students, were honored yesterday at a tea at the Biltmore hotel. Official host for the affair was Dr. Richard G. Cox, president of the school on the picturesque coast near Gulfport, Miss., who arrived yesterday by plane. Rosalind Moody, special representative of the school, was also present.

A feature of the tea was the formation of an alumnae club with such popular Atlantans as Margaret Winship, Frances Alston, Marion Stegeman, Florrie Margaret Guy (Mrs. James) Funk, and Frances Woodruff (Mrs. Beverly) Dubose as members. Among the 1942 graduates of high schools here who will attend Gulf Park Seminary are Lane Winship, Betty Rayfield, Adda Mae McDougall, Pat Slider, Jessie Pittman, Vivian Newberry, Phyllis Commins, and Natalie Jones, of Fort Benning. They will attend the tea, as will some of last year's students, including Catherine Runnels, Iwee Gholson, Dorothy Zachry, Kitty Arnold, of Newnan, and Mary Ellen Banks, of Grantville.

Dr., Mrs. Duncan Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Duncan celebrated their silver wedding anniversary at 8:30 o'clock last evening at the First Baptist church of East Point, of which Dr. Duncan is pastor. Several hundred friends and members of the church were present for the auspicious occasion.

The church was beautifully arranged with formal decorations of palms, white gladioli and burning white tapers. Dr. Louie D. Newton re-read the marriage service for the couple, who were attended by their sons, W. A. Duncan Jr. and Edwin Eldridge Duncan.

Mrs. N. G. Baggett, as soloist, sang "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "I Love You Truly," both of which were sung at the wedding of Dr. and Mrs. Duncan. Jess Purcell presented a program of organ music, and Mrs. M. O. Hemperley, pianist, played the wedding marches in the same order in which they were used for the original ceremony.

Mrs. Duncan wore for her anniversary a copy of her wedding gown of white marquisette over satin. In her hair she wore a coronet of fresh white flowers and adorning her shoulder was a cluster of white rosebuds. She is the former Miss Milner Sammons, her marriage to Dr. Duncan having taken place at the home of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Sammons, in Macon.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the social hall of the church. The Euzelian Class, with Mrs. T. J. Kelly, president, and Mrs. A. J. Fries, social chairman, was in charge of arrangements. Several hundred friends signed the guest register.

New Solid Cologne To End Spilling Worries

By Winifred Ware.

Shining bottles of perfume and cologne on your dressing table are a delightful luxury, but these same shining bottles spilled in your weekend case or handbag are quite another story.

Have you had that nagging thought at the back of your mind?

"Did I remember to tighten the top to that big bottle of cologne?" or "If that small bottle of perfume were to break, how near it did I pack that new white evening dress?"

If you are guilty of having let this worry you, the answer is not to leave your perfume at home, that is asking too much of any woman. The answer is the new solid cologne, now on sale at our leading department stores.

We have found it, perfect for traveling in a handbag or weekend bag, and you might like to keep it in your drawer at the office to dab a bit of it on just before the five-thirty date.

This cologne comes in a cool shade of green, a fat stick, about four inches long and more than an inch in diameter. It is packaged in an attractive jar to preserve its fragrance.

Your skin will have a cool, soothing sensation after you apply it, and you will love the light, spicy fragrance that makes it just right for the hot days ahead.

For the name of this solid cologne and where it can be purchased, call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565, or write her in care of The Atlanta Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Popular Girls

Look Feminine

Girls who give evenings at community centers to entertain men in uniform discover that to do the rumba isn't enough to insure popularity with boys in khaki and blue. To dance well is an asset, of course, but it counts lots more when the girl herself is a dainty partner, whose appearance from head to foot implies a wholesome acquaintance with soap and water.

In army or navy life, boys quickly develop a deep respect for cleanliness which makes them critical of anyone whose standard in this respect is not high.

Even if a girl comes from a day of work, she should try to arrange for a bath and a change of clothes. She will be sure, too, that the little details of grooming are attended to. Her slip won't show, her nails won't be chipped, and her hair will be fresh and clean and prettily dressed. Her dress will be spotless, and accessories, down to her handkerchief, will be in good order. Her make-up will be applied with a light hand to enhance her good points and not to mask her face. Thus arrayed, she will be good to look at, as well as nice to dance with.

Housework Alone Guarantees No Trimness

Housework Alone Guarantees No Trimness

By Ida Jean Kain.

The average housewife does all her own work and does not have to pay hundreds of dollars a week to find that scrubbing floors and doing other odd jobs will not streamline her silhouette.

But that's the charge, I'm told, at some of the more exclusive health farms, and scrubbing floors is part of what the ladies do for exercise. Well, it's a good preliminary workout, and no doubt a novelty for them, and I hope I don't spoil their fun by pointing to the statistics that the average housewife scrubs three miles of floor a year—and is not streamlined.

Of course, scrubbing the floor on hands and knees can amount to exercise, provided you constantly remember to pull up and in with the stomach muscles, push your back up, relax your shoulders, reach far out with alternate arms and keep your chin up. But if you're bent on getting the floor clean, you'd better go right ahead and get it done and take your exercise some other way.

Of course, that is not to say that you should not bother to do your housework in good posture. You should always, because it cuts down fatigue, strengthens the muscles and makes work easier. But my advice is to save yourself as much as possible in all the tedious and tiring tasks; sit down to clear vegetables; sit on a high stool to iron and to wash and dry dishes—sitting takes less energy. Have your kitchen arranged so that it takes the fewest steps, there is no use wearing yourself out just trotting; a walk in the fresh air will do you so much more good. And some time during the day, before you are tired from housework, take 15 minutes of specific calisthenics to whittle down the waistline, tone the abdominal muscles and slim the hips.

Exercise of these big muscles that stimulates the circulation and keeps you feeling fit. When you keep these figure controlling muscles in tone, housework is easier. Here is a trio of easy exercises:

1. Position: Lying on back on floor, left leg straight down, right knee bent with the sole of the foot on the floor.

Exercise: Bend the left knee and bring close to chest as you dig the foot. Repeat eight times, then keep the left knee flexed and foot on floor, and bring other knee to chest. By keeping one knee bent, all strain is avoided.

2. Position: Lying on back, flex both knees and place soles of both feet on floor.

Exercise: Twist at the waist, touch thighs to floor on one side back to center, and twist to other side. Keep upper part of back on floor and make the waistline muscles g-l-v-e.

3. Position: Lying on side on floor, head resting on one arm, other arm braced in front of chest for support. Keep the legs straight down.

Exercise: Swing the top leg up in front, then back and up. Swing rhythmically, a n d slowly, 12 counts, thrust change sides and perform with other leg. On finishing, shake legs free from tension.

A good exercise leaflet for the housewife is "Streamline the Mid-section." Enclose stamped self-addressed envelope for this set of exercises to Ida Jean Kain, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Man's Infidelity Is No Proof Of Diminishing Affection

By Dixie George.

Dear Dixie:

I have been married for 16 years and have four children, two girls and two boys. A little more than four years ago I found out that my husband was going with a girl and it almost caused a divorce. Of course he promised that he would never treat me that way again and the girl left the state.

I believed him, and thought that things were going along all right when I discovered, just last year that he was running around with a married woman, and we had the same scene over again. He begged my forgiveness and asked me to let him continue living with me, and promised never to be guilty again. I stay at home and look after the children, run my home and seldom go anywhere since my happiness and pleasure is in that kind of life. I suppose the reason we are still together is that I still love him a little and he tells me he loves me, even though he does run around. I do not see how he can love me and still run around with other women, do you?

I worry so about all this that I can hardly sleep at night. What do you think?

WORRIED WIFE.

I know it is hard to believe, but I think there are a lot of men in the world, including your husband, who still love their wives, yet enjoy running around with other women. You will notice that in all his affairs, he has not one time asked for a divorce has he? Hasn't he always come back to you and asked forgiveness and told you he loved you? Of course there is much more respect you have for a husband whose love is like that, but at least he is providing a home for you and the children and is honest in admitting that he is running around.

It hurts a woman's pride to know that her husband is treating her in such a manner, but there are very few husbands who are perfect, so a lot of women take things such as you are taking them, and do not divorce the men usually for the reason that the men are good providers and they usually love them.

Since you love him the only thing you can do is to stay with him. I think it would be a good idea to let him know that you are well aware of his many affairs and that you do not trust him fully. If you think the love you have for him is strong enough to outweigh his unfaithfulness, then I suppose there is nothing left for you to do but stay with him.

Soap and Water as a Disinfectant

By Dr. William Brady.

Bacteriologist in an agriculture experiment station writes:

We were interested in your comments concerning contamination of bus handles, stair rails, straps for standees, doorknobs, etc. We have undertaken to investigate the types or organisms contaminating such surfaces.

Some of your statements are true so far as our data are concerned and others of your statements may be open to some question.

As you probably know, there are ways in which doorknobs and similar surfaces may be sterilized with standard disinfectants, and we believe that in future steps will be taken to see that such surfaces are regularly and properly sterilized.

We hope our findings in this investigation will give us definite information on the number and types of organisms and so afford some indication of the kind of disinfectant to use.

Such tests of surfaces handled by many people daily have been made innumerable times and as nearly as I can learn the results have been of no special value in determining choice of an antiseptic or disinfectant for such contaminated surfaces.

After all, who cares how badly contaminated a surface may be if he doesn't have to touch the surface? Doorknobs may be necessary in some instances, but in many instances they should be prohibited by sanitary ordinance—for instance, on doors of rest rooms or lavatories. For the same reason handles should be prohibited on faucets in lavatories, foot pedals or other arrangements to operate faucets without touching them.

Personally, if I had a choice of antiseptics or disinfectants for any surface likely to be contaminated, or for the mouthpiece of a telephone (though I wouldn't bother to "disinfect" or "sterilize" a telephone no matter what it is besides myself) I'd choose plain soap and water. I believe soap and water washing of any such surface makes it perfectly safe, practically sterile, and I do not believe any chemical antiseptic or disinfectant can serve the purpose any better than soap and water does.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Alcoholics Anonymous.

It is my sincere desire to overcome this craving before it completely ruins my life. Have noticed allusions in your column, to some local group of "Alcoholics Anonymous"—can you inform me how I might get in touch with such a group? (B. R. F.)

Answer—Oddly enough I find I can't. I had letters from members of such groups and some literature on file, but so determined are they to remain anonymous that I don't know, after all, where you can get in touch with a group. Send 10 cents and stamped envelope bearing your address, for booklet "Dipsomania" which may be of some help to you in overcoming the craving.

MY DAY: More Attention To Child's Hearing

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—Yesterday I came up by plane to New York City. I was interested to find that between Washington and New York City there were a number of empty seats, so I think the young people who were not to give up traveling by plane, so long as I was willing to cope with some uncertainty.

I wasn't actually told I could have a seat until an hour before the plane left. However, I didn't have anything so vital to do for an hour after reaching New York City and a little uncertainty didn't matter.

Perhaps this period is going to teach us to plan our lives on quite such tight schedules. After all, if we learn to use our time usefully wherever we are, it won't matter if we are held up a couple of hours by troop trains, or if we have to wait over for a couple of planes until there is an empty seat. Most of my life has been spent getting accustomed to doing one thing, and then finding I have to do something entirely different. This is going to be a new lesson and I hope a valuable one.

We had one guest at lunch yesterday. Then, via subway and train, I went to Orange, N. J., to spend the late afternoon and evening with my cousin, Mrs. Henry Parish, and Mrs. Franklin K. Lane, who is still staying with her.

Even the little dog seemed to look expectantly for his master. The house and place out there, which Mr. Parish greatly loved, and where he planted almost every tree and shrub and flower, seemed rather deserted without him.

On the way back I happened to sit in the train next to Dr. Robert Seales and we were able to talk a little about the Wiltwyck school, which has been reorganized. I hope it is going to do a valuable piece of work for both colored and white children.

In my mail has come a letter from Dr. Markovitch, who is director of the hearing clinic of the University of Southern California. He writes that there are some 2,000,000 hard-of-hearing children in this country, whose loss of hearing is discovered far too late for complete cure. This is largely due to the fact that mothers do not realize that complications which destroy hearing often arise after measles, whooping cough, infantile paralysis and other children's diseases.

Public opinion is indifferent to the fact that the hearing handicap may be a great deterrent to the development of the child. Therefore, there are no state or federal agencies which care especially for hard-of-hearing children and they are not included in the benefits of the crippled children act. If we know how much could be done, there would be a weight of public opinion in favor of watching for any signs of impaired hearing in small children.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Hails a South American As Valentino of Today

By Louella Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, July 8.—(INS) Zorina, with a new bob, cut less than two inches long, and plenty of warm clothing, left tonight for the snow country in the high Sierras to join the "For Whom the Bell Tolls" company. She will be there for 40 days. After she smokes as Maria. She has another best seller assignment in "The Hour Before Dawn."

After America entered the war Buddy De Sylva hesitated about Somerset Maugham's novel because one of the principal characters is a conscientious objector who marries a German spy. In the end he kills her and himself—a gloomy enough fate to satisfy any present-day objections. Ray Milland gets the chief male role opposite Zorina.

The Latin whizz—Alberto Vila, who makes girls swoon and is so handsome M-G-M believes within a short time he will be the Valentino of today, is due back here the 15th. Vila hails from Montevideo, Uruguay, is rich, sings and has the manners of a Charles Boyer and the physique of a Cary Grant. RKO brought him here originally and he was put in one movie, "They Met in Argentina."

The movie wasn't particularly good but M-G-M saw it and signed Alberto pronto.

The best break given any little girl since Shirley Temple created such excitement in "Little Miss Barker," is that given 51-2-year-old Maxine O'Brien. Maxine will play Margaret, the war-orphaned youngster in "Journey for Margaret and I can tell you that's a mighty big assignment!

All in the Game

By JACK TROY.

Necessary Evil Rotund, bald Roy Thompson, president of the Little Rock baseball club, will not be the most popular host in the history of the Southern League All-Star game which is to be played tomorrow night.

With newspapermen and yea, verily, certain other club owners he will be regarded purely as a necessary evil.

At the meeting of league directors, which is to be held in connection with the game in Little Rock, he may be asked to explain his recent conduct with reference to raising prices for a special game and making no announcement of it in advance.

The newspapermen would ask him—except that the local and visiting firemen seldom take the trouble to pass the time of day with the Pebble president.

I, for one, thought Thompson had decided to change for the better when he informed President Trammell Scott he had decided to co-operate wholeheartedly on the All-Star game. He had never co-operated before and many wondered what his attitude would be with the game to be played in his own park for the first time.

He assured President Scott that no one should hold back on account of him; that he planned to put on the game in a manner comparable with any held heretofore.

But I don't know. As soon as the baseball folks arrive they'd better check with him on the prices he is going to charge Little Rock fans. He might even be figuring to tax visiting baseball writers.

Now, a Free Game Here's what I'm getting at. A Little Rock newspaper proposed a night for Willis Hudlin recently. Both newspaper and radio co-operated in the finest manner to put it over when the management decided it was worthy.

The management then had a brilliant idea. "We'll raise prices and make a real good thing out of it. The fans will have to pay, once they're at the park. Good old Hudlin," or words to that effect.

When the fans arrived to pay homage to Hudlin, men, women and children discovered, to their amazement and some to their dismay, that prices had been hiked to 85 cents.

There were kids there, mind you, clutching the customary quarter given them by their parents to see the game. And a lot of them cried, I understand, when they couldn't get in to see the game. I can well understand how the kids felt.

And it doesn't take much imagination to figure the reaction of their parents.

The newspapers of Little Rock publicly apologized for proposing a Hudlin night, and for "the unappreciative manner in which your patronage was received last night by the Little Rock Baseball Company." Newspaper passes were honored only in the bleachers.

Jack Keady, sports editor of the Arkansas Democrat, wrote: "It was like the blind leading the blind. With a large crowd assured for the night, the 'front office' of the club suddenly felt it was its duty to take advantage of the fans' generosity. When Hudlin admirers reached the park with tribute in their hearts for a popular pilot, they were snared in an outrageous manner."

If the Southern League does the right thing Little Rock will be made to present a free game for the fans during the season.

The Winner I thought I had heard of cases of extreme inconsideration. But Little Rock wins top prize. Here in this difficult war year of 1942 a winning team has won splendid support at Little Rock.

And in appreciation thereof they have a big night for the manager, and is showered with lavish gifts, and the management shows its appreciation by raising prices, unannounced, and keeping children outside the gates. (Six thousand attended in spite of it.)

Birmingham was the Little Rock opponent for Hudlin night, and the Baron management sizzled over the state of affairs.

If the All-Star game failed to draw 1,000 fans it could be easily understood. But, of course, fans are loyal folks. They'll even stand such treatment as they were accorded on Hudlin night and support a game of this nature, purely through civic pride.

Crackers Bow to Pels in Battle of Homers, 8-4

Only 6,662
Turn Out for
'Men's Night'

Atlanta Gets 16 Hits But Leaves 13 Men
Stranded.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY,

Assistant Sports Editor.

New Orleans gained an even break in the series and dropped the Crackers three full games behind league-leading Little Rock by winning an 8-to-4 battle of home runs last night before a men's night crowd of 6,662 fans.

Nine of the 12 runs scored in the free-hitting contest were the results of homers. All of the Atlanta tallies came when Charlie Glock and Lindsey Deal walloped balls into the right-field signs, while long Tom Winsett and Bob Richards accounted for five New Orleans runs with circuit clouts. Winsett's was one of the longest ever hit in Ponce de Leon Park. The ball went past the light-tower in right-center, the base of which is 386 feet away from home plate.

16 HITS EACH.

Both clubs got 16 hits but the Crackers were unable to use theirs. They left 13 men stranded on the sacks, one or more in each inning save the sixth. On the other hand, the Pels got to Rookie Jim Mertz for nine hits and seven runs in three and a third innings. Rene Cortes followed and pitched creditable ball until lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

George Dockins went the route for New Orleans and was blasted freely. Deal got three singles in addition to his homer and Doc Smith contributed three more singles.

A couple of fancy fielding plays lived up with things for Little Rock's smallest men's night crowd in history. Letchus raced far to his right to stop a labeled base hit and Deal made a great catch of a line drive in left field.

The Crackers thus ended their home stay with an 8-4 defeat, the last two series with Birmingham and New Orleans. They will leave on a road trip tomorrow.

PELS SCORE FIRST.

The Pelicans broke the ice in the second inning when Winsett led off with a single through the box, and Burnmeister beat out an infield hit back of second. Winsett reached third when Blakeney dropped Smith's throw trying to pick him off second. Gillenwater then blasted a 386-foot triple to right-center, scoring Winsett and Burnmeister. Mertz, a double play, tightened down and retired the next three batters, leaving Gillenwater stranded on third.

Smith singled with one out in the Cracker half of the second and scored in front of Glock, who blasted the ball over the second tier of signs in right for a home run.

With one out in the third, Moser singled to center and was forced at second by Richards. Winsett then blasted one past the centerfield light post for a homer, putting New Orleans ahead, 4-2.

After Hart fled to Hudlin to start the fourth, Dockins and Pittman and Moser hit successive singles. Moser's scoring Dockins. Cortes replaced Mertz on the mound after the latter had been touched for nine hits. Then B. Richards socked one into the signs in right scoring three more runs. Winsett walked, Burnmeister popped out and Gillenwater singled. Deal then made a spectacular one-handed catch of Bolling's long drive to end the agony with the Pels leading, 8-2.

Deal's homer behind Letchus' single gave the Crackers two more runs in the ninth. Scott walked and Smith kept the rally alive with a single to center, but Glock and Blakeney grounded out to end it.

Western Amateur Medal To Ward

SPOKANE, July 8.—(AP)—Corporal Marvin "Bud" Ward, in the Army now but still the "Mr. Big" of amateur golf, fired his latest challenge to the field today by winning medal honors in the Western Amateur championship, of which he is the two-time and defending title holder.

When the chips were down and real action was necessary today he whipped in with a 68, four under par, to post a 36-hole total of 141. It gave him medal laurels by two strokes in the tournament he has dominated the last two years.

Marsh Hammond, a local crackshot, ran second to Ward in the qualifying race. With rounds of 72-71-143.

Two topnotchers were bracketed at 145—Bruce McCormick, of Los Angeles, and Wilford Wehrle, of Racine, Wis. The former is an ex-national public links champion and Wehrle has held the Western Amateur title and last year won the Mexican championship from a field that included Ward.

Girls Play Sailors At Piedmont Park

It's not often that girls compete with he-men sailors in athletic combat, but the Hertz Drivervell girls' softball team will play a team of sailors from the Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board at Piedmont park tonight.

Managing the Bluejackets will be the Hertz girls' former coach, Yeoman Ray Barnes, who announced the scheduling of the game for 9 o'clock, with the admission price being one article of scrap rubber for the nationwide scrap rubber drive.

Barnes said Kidd, Lyle and McKay will probably share pitching chores for the sailors and that he expects the girls to send Caroline Whitaker and Anna Stell Maynard to the mound for Hertz.

Don't envy anyone who picked up a splendid used car. Do as HE did. Find one exactly like in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

Tarzan White, Ex-Tide Guard Is Inducted Here

Phi Beta Kappa at 'Bama, Once Held Pacific Coast Wrestling Title; Challenged Joe Louis.

By SERGEANT M. BRYAN BAKER.

When a hopeful Jap starts for one 225-pound American soldier, now undergoing induction processing at Fort McPherson, he had better know his jujitsu better than well, or prepare to join his dishonorable ancestors pronto.

The burly volunteer officer candidate is Arthur "Tarzan" White, famed as an All-American guard on the University of Alabama's grid team in 1935-36, and as a professional wrestler. In football circles, whenever New York Giant or Chicago Cardinal fans get together, the name of "Tarzan" White is vividly recalled. During the 1937, '38 and '39 seasons he played with the world champion Giants and the two years following he was with the Cardinals.

White has quite a record in both lines of sport. In 1939 he was officially recognized as Pacific Coast wrestling champion, by the California State Wrestling Association.

Among names, in a long line of conquests, well known to wrestling fans, that have succumbed to White's whirlwind attack are Jim London, Man Mountain Dean, Sander Szabo, Branko Nagurski, "Rasputin" the Mad Russian, Dean Detton and Vincent Lopez. The wrestling was taken up mainly to keep in shape for football, White revealed.

Szabo, recognized by the national association as champ at present, was beaten by "Tarzan" in 1939. Recently, the latter tried for a return match but joined the Army before it was arranged.

An honor student at Alabama, graduating in three years in '36, "Tarzan" was a member of Phi Beta Kappa, majoring in the romance languages.

In '37 he attended the University of Mexico, taking a post-graduate course in Spanish. While there he acted as tourist guide and wrestled, winning the Mexican championship. "It was easy," he grinned, "those Mexican wrestlers are all little squirts."

At the Rose Bowl game against Stanford in '35, White was a member of the winning southerners, who came out ahead, 29-13.

Born at Lockhart, Ala., White claims Atmore, Ala., as his home. Married and 26 years of age, he plans to stay in the Army, making it a career, shelving earlier aspirations as a teacher.

Approached on the subject of "fixing" in wrestling matches, the chunky, hairy-shouldered athlete explained: "I'll readily admit there are many bouts that are fixed, as there are in many other sports, but I've never participated in any. I've been offered chances for some side dough, but always turned them down. The public has a mistaken idea of wrestling. Of course, there is a lot of showmanship connected with it, and they pay to see a certain amount of that, but it's a grueling game, and I believe a wrestler has to be in better physical shape than a fighter."

"Tarzan" claims statistics show the government takes in more revenue from wrestling than any other sport including baseball and football. Modestly, he once added, as an afterthought: "I challenged Louis in '39 for a mixed match."

"Joe Louis, the boxing champ?" he was incredulously asked.

"Yeah," he answered, "but his managers wouldn't give me one, although the west coast papers played it up big. Lewis, that's 'Strangler' Lewis, my manager, offered a $10,000 side bet on me to win, winner take all. Guess he was pretty confident."

Looking up Lewis' record, it was found he was internationally recognized as the world's champion wrestler, five different times.

Wrestlers Vie At Auditorium Here Friday

Heavyweight wrestling returns to the City Auditorium Friday night at 8:30.

Headlining the opening program of 1942 will be the meeting of Ernie Dusek, most notorious of all the four famous Dusek brothers, with Joe Cox, the Kansas City bonecrusher whose villainy begins where that of Cowboy Luttrell ends.

Emil Dusek, youngest member of this hard-hitting wrestling family, will take on the current sensation of the wrestling world, a mysterious, giant, masked warrior known as the Golden Terror. The Terror, weighing 310 pounds, has won his last 33 matches.

Dorv Roche, a headliner here for years, occupies a preliminary role, meeting Hans Schultz, a husky chap from Milwaukee, in a 30-minute, one-fall match. The main event carries a 90-minute time limit. The semi-final, which, like the feature, is a three-fall affair, has a limit of one hour.

Southern Aces, Travs To Vie At Little Rock

Richards' All-Stars Pack Power for Annual Tilt Tonight.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., July 8.—(AP)—Al Moran, the wily, wiry Irish right-hander, and chubby Vito Tamulis, one time Brooklyn Dodger southpaw now starting with Nashville's Vols, will be mound opponents in the fifth annual Southern Association All-Star game at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow when Little Rock's surprising Travelers meet the league's best. Subject only to game time changes, Manager Willis Hudlin, of the Travelers, today nominated his stringbean mound ace, who has won 12 and lost four, to oppose the league's glamour boys, with Manager Paul Richards, of Atlanta, All-Star skipper, selected Tamulis—only moundsman to make the star squad by a unanimous vote.

Hudlin, who moulded the league's leading team out of a bunch of journeyman ball players—although three of them did make the All-Star squad, indicated he would stick to his regular starting lineup. Richards came up with a batting order packing enough power to give any pitcher goose pimples.

The All-Star squad was picked by the loop's sportswriters, with the exception of replacement of Little Rock's pitcher Jim Trexler, outfielder Tommy McBride and infielder Leroy Schalk and a couple of minor changes in the list of reserves, the dream team will be intact tomorrow night.

Counting on a turnout of about 9,000 fans including the sportswriting brigade, league officials and a flock of baseball's visiting firemen, the Little Rock Baseball Company has maneuvered Traveler's Field until it hines. The Sports-writers' Association will have a social and business get-together tomorrow and the league will hold a routine midsummer meeting before the game.

Rail Officials Pledge Track To War Effort

10,000,000 Feet of Little-Used Rails May Be Salvaged.

Officials representing 75 railroads in the southeast pledged little-used track and equipment to the war effort at a meeting here yesterday.

Bert C. Bertram, railroad salvage chief of WPB, said with the southeastern roads "co-operating 100 per cent" about 10,000,000 feet of good track could be expected from this region.

"This is an extraordinary effort to find new and unusual sources of both track and scrap," he added, and "I have new confidence in the workability of American democracy after meeting railroad men of the south."

Most of the rails will be laid in Army camps, shipbuilding yards, docks and war plants, E. E. Norris, president of the Southern Railroad, said, and some will be sent overseas to build military railroads to supply fighting forces of the United States.

Infrequently used lines, side-tracks and other equipment will be loaded on non-stop freight trains for war purposes. Regularly used track will not be abandoned.

Homer Edenfield, WPB special projects salvage chief, said railroad officials also agreed to demolish bridges and turn obsolete rolling stock and other unused equipment over to the WPB.

C. H. Buford, vice president of the Association of American Railroads, and J. M. Hood, of the American Short Line Railroad Association, addressed the conference with government officials from Washington.

Head Officials Realigned in WPB Shakeup

First Difficult Phase of Output Task Over, Nelson Says.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—Donald M. Nelson announced realignment of the top directing officials of the War Production Board today and happily reported that the first, difficult phase of the production task had been accomplished.

The objective of converting big industries from the manufacture of automobiles and other civilian items to the making of planes and other military essentials has been accomplished, he said.

With this has gone the herculean job of retooling these industries, of providing them with the machinery, the jigs and dies and myriad other devices without which the engines and munitions of war could not be manufactured.

New Phase Ahead.

Now, he said, a new phase lies ahead, one of controlling production by directing the flow of the limited supply of raw materials into the making of things which the Army and Navy considers urgent, with a simultaneous regard for producing, too, the things the civilian economy needs.

First consideration will be given, of course, to the requirements of the fighting forces, he added, but it may become necessary to ask that they re-examine their schedules in some instances in the light of shortages of raw or other materials.

It is not up to us to tell the Army and Navy what they want, he said, "but it is up to us to tell them when the supply gets so short that a program must be changed."

To supervise the new production phase, Nelson created four new offices between himself and the actual operating committees, to handle details of administration which he has attended to personally in the past. Thus he will be left free to decide matters of policy, visit key production areas, and possibly make a trip to England.

Batt Named Aid.

He named William L. Batt vice chairman of the board to serve as his assistant and deputy, and to help him in the determination of policies and the direction of operations.

He also created a new post, vice chairman on program determination, to direct the already functioning divisions dealing with that subject. To the job he named James S. Knowlson, formerly director of industry operations.

A third new office he announced as director general for operations, under Amory Houghton, formerly deputy chief of the Bureau of Industry branches. All operational work, including the industry and material branches and the field organization, will head up to Houghton.

He also created, but left unfilled for the moment, a fourth post, deputy chairman on program progress, who will have charge of WPB's statistical services, which keep tab and report on output.

Most Claim Innocence.

Most of those who entered pleas today said they were innocent, including Kunze, Wilbur V. Keegan, counsel for the Bund until last January, with offices at Teaneck, N. J., was held at Hartford with Kunze. He was arrested in New Haven last night.

Judge Sweeney postponed sentencing until after the trial of the other seven who appeared before him, set for July 28. The seven included Gustav Elmer, Bund national treasurer.

In Cleveland, a plea of innocence was entered by Joseph Behlaviak, Bund leader, to an indictment alleging conspiracy to violate the alien registration and selective service acts.

COLLEGE CONCERT.

Borrowed Auto Lacks U. S. Stamp

If he hadn't borrowed his brother-in-law's car, Ernest Shulman wouldn't have had that brief brush with the law yesterday.

At least that's what Shulman, a resident of 662 Park drive, N. E., told United States Commissioner David J. Meyerhardt.

Arrested for failure to have the little pink government motor vehicle stamp, Shulman said he had borrowed the car of his brother-in-law, who was out of town, and he didn't know whether he had a stamp or not.

Commissioner Meyerhardt released Shulman under $25 cash bond. Another person arrested was B. T. Newman, of Newman, who made bond earlier this week.

Prompt action is necessary in replying to the attractive offers in the Want Ad pages of The Constitution.

It's Farewell to Debutantes-- Or So Says One of Their Own

By AMY PORTER.

NEW YORK, July 8.—(AP)—Maybe, it's farewell to debutantes.

One of their very own—the rich, the social, the glamorous Lucy Aldrich, daughter of Banker Winthrop W. Aldrich—said today.

"The debutante just isn't any more. None of the girls I know can bear to be called by that name."

Scornfully, Miss Aldrich, who spoke at a youth forum held by the fashion group at the Hotel Astor, described the debutante—that was.

"She was a girl who had an enormous coming out party, she stayed up late, she slept till five, she was photographed with a friend at a restaurant, she went to another party at night. She got so tired her parents had to send her away to rest."

"Nothing Inside."

"She was just a face, a lot of expensive clothes—and nothing inside. She never had a good time, never did anything interesting."

Along with the "obsolete debutante," Miss Aldrich nominated for oblivion the debutante's alter ego, the glamour girl, who, she said, "was a bad imitation of a movie star without any talent."

More cheerfully, Miss Aldrich told of the new wartime credo now guiding her and her friends—"the girls who refuse to be debutantes in 1942."

All of her crowd are training

Coates Denied Habeas Corpus By U. S. Court

Defense Counsel Says Decision Will Be Appealed.

United States District Judge A. B. Lovett yesterday in Savannah denied the habeas corpus writ of Charles Coates, under death sentence for slaying of a Georgia state highway patrolman in December, 1940.

James R. Venable, one of Coates' attorneys, said the decision would be appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals, and "from there to the United States supreme court, if necessary."

The habeas corpus writ to the federal court followed a series of state court actions in which Coates' attorneys sought a new trial for the defendant. The state supreme court upheld the convicting court.

The writ was based on one contention that the last sentence given Coates after appeals to the state tribunals failed was imposed without Coates' attorneys being present in the court.

Since being sentenced in superior court at Ringgold in February 1941, Coates has had his execution stayed five times. He was convicted of killing Patrol Corporal Fred Black Jr. after the officer had stopped him because of a minor traffic offense. Coates was a fugitive from a Missouri prison at the time. He is now confined to the state penitentiary at Reidsville. His last execution date, May 13, was stayed by executive action when the federal appeal was filed.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., July 8.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed today and more than a score injured, many critically, in the collision of an interurban passenger trolley car and an express freight car.

Short Cotton Crop Indicated

WASHINGTON, July 8.—(AP)—The 1942 cotton crop may fall 1,500,000 bales short of the production goal set by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard.

This prospect was indicated by a department report today that cotton in cultivation on July 1 totaled 24,005,000 acres, or 3.4 per cent more than was in cultivation a year ago. Secretary Wallace had set a planting allotment of 27,400,000 acres under the AAA farm program, and had issued a special appeal urging farmers to plant their full allotment.

The 3,395,000-acre difference between the allotment and the acreage in cultivation could be expected to produce about 1,560,000 bales on the basis of last year's acre yield of 232 pounds.

Officials said there was no danger of a cotton shortage, except possibly of long-stapled types, though the 1942 crop failed to meet the requirements for the coming year.
